it dosentb matter where she is as long as she is gone and never returns to tv in any capacity in my opinion

Re:whio cares where tess is as long as she goes

Posted by dbmcmommy - 2005/06/14 13:09

That sounds kind of harsh but i know that I don't care to see her again.

I know I would change the channel if I were to see her on a show again. She tried to play us all for fools, with her crying and antics. She even took something a horrible and turned it into a question of do any of us really believe this happened or was her story another lie just to get a reaction from the coaches and viewers for sympathy Harsh maybe but saved you from a long posting Anne :lol: :lol: :lol: :P ;)

I see where you are coming from. I agree Tess is and most of the women you listed are bad examples of your race. However, I don't watch them and think they represent african americans. I know there are people of all races who unfortunately act that way. I don't agree that Towanda should be listed with the other women, I still want to believe her side of the story. Erika from season 1 was a great woman, Rana the life coach from season 1 was a great role model. Iyanla is a great woman as well. What about Rachael, she was not a bitch, I loved her. Rain was great! There were many positive black women as well!

It's not that I was trying to make a short post, hugs. It's just that I know that sometimes family members come onto these sites and I don't want to be the one to post something negative about a person.

It may be editing. Or it may be that Tess really is one of those people that just annoys you with her cuteness and trying to get spotlight and yet make everything go her way. I don't know. I do know that I was not a big fan of hers and she did rub me the wrong way. But I wish her the best in life, even though I don't want to see her on TV again. I have seen enough of her to last me for my lifetime.

I'm sorry. Did that sound harsh? :huh:

No,it was just your opinion dbmc :)

I know drama is good for TV and they gave Tess alot of face time. :blink: Ans IMO the other girls couldn't focus on their issues.

It wasn't Tess' time to grow or change.She was not open at all :huh: :unsure:

She wanted someone to agree with her not for her to see things from a different perspective.It was "The All About Tess Show" :x :dry:

Can't see where i am mean, jus my opinion ? should i have a stern opinion... let me know... i felt hurt by tess, she blatantly used the show and all the woman who watch and cared for her she wasted wasted all of our time what about that... there is still banter about her and she is gone

she really made african american women look bad as an example on tv all i was saying is that we don't need some tv big wig saying " wow she is jus like amorosa how hot !!!! that is all you see on tv now less alone reality tv. even Haley berry( academy award winng actress) complained that there aren't good rels for black women on tv or movies there are enough black sisters on tv have bad roles that are not representative of most progressive blacks but i guess If you are not privy to be black you may think i am making tooooo much of it all and everything is rosy well tess rubbed me the wrong way and i thought all of you women could ofhad a better example of a blackwoman on reality tv insted of the usual suspects.

so sorry to those who need an apology

Do you know the" saying walk in my shoes"

well i you were a black woman and it was hard enough to see yourself on tv portrayed right; then....if you say something about it some people will think that you have an "inferority complex " because you say something about it.. well it is a lost feling . all of those womenyou mentioned are good examples i espically like rain :laugh: now she is more closer to reality than tess or towanda don't get m,e wrong i liked towanda but i started seeing through her right away . then the bubble burst with CRIMinal CHARGES so i guess i am like some black people that see it differently and things are ok out there and everything is jaded do me a favor find a afican american woman yourself and that you feel you can engage and aske her for enlightenment on what SHE thinksABOUT THIS SUBJECT IF she SAYS i am wrong i will apologize i will do it now FOR those that need it i am sorry if what i said offended any one not my purpose here.

truly sorry if it offended

TESS - A Woman from SO

Posted by Halfdollar - 2005/06/16 10:07

OK VCAP...

I have been listening to you carry on and most of the time don't even know what you are talking about!

I AM OFFENDED by you going on and on about Black Women! You made your point about 10 Posts back! You Do Not Like the Way Tess Appeared on SO....OK, so that point is made!

Now what????? You are making Tess being in the SO House & her issues all about being a Black Woman and that is NOT what Tess was all about! BUT You are entitled to that opinion.

In my opinion now, I think enough is enough about Tess Bashing! When we ourselves bring out negativity, we draw negativity to come out also! This site was NOT formed on negativity! I don't know if you were able to see that by reading past posts....but again, you are entitled to your opinion! But VCAP, no one is going with what you think about Tess's Blackness & how she was chosen for the show nor how she portrayed herself or the SO Show portrayed her!!

OK, CAN'T WE ALL JUST GET ALONG.....AND MOVE ON????!!!

BANDITA!
Halfdollar!

I, too, agree with DB that all the negativity is NOT how we tend to talk about the SOGs and I, too, would NOT want to come to a site and read such hatred about myself ---- no matter who I am!

AMEN!

Hey All and especially Vcap54,

I too am a black woman, I'm 57 so I've been around a while. Tess's behavior I felt did not reflect on me, she was immature, dishonest, deceitful and had delusions of grandeur, which I do not have, nor do I suspect you either.

Please do not put the "image" of black woman on Tess or Deborah, our race is not the only race that has had women of disgrace or dubious character. I did not relate to either, I still don't know why Deborah was there. Maybe they both came on the show with their perception of what it was going to be like, and found a different set of circumstances they couldn't adjust too.

Now for me Denise's behavior upset me just as much as Deborah or Tess if not more. She was rude, cut-throat, mean, insensitive, a horrible housekeeper and wife, but when she walked out of house she was dress and made up to the nines. What a contradiction. I could also see Sommer's deceit from the beginning, she was another one who came to the SO house for one reason and changed her agenda to fit her means to her own end.

So don't take the ethnicity of the women personally, I don't think that is the intent of the show. Look and learn from their life experiences, some you can relate too and some you can't, and I'm blessed that I never had to suffer sexual abuse. We've all had emotional and psychological turmoil in our life at any given time, but we made it through. The difference is now we have a forum whereby we can watch what other women have experienced and how they've subjected themselves to "our" scrutiny to overcome them and go on and try and succeed in their lives.

I didn't take it personal about Tess or Deborah's behavior, just thought they wasted a chance to really get the help they needed, whether they realized it or not.

Stay Positive, Peace, Love and Joy

Sugah

I guess I'm the only one who would like to see these women still get help. Even Deborah. I wouldn't mind seeing them again and having some success.

Re:

I think they should Deborha , Tess , Chrisine 1, Nayanza, Sommer and Kimberlyn all in the house together and see how they do.

the only one I like out of the group is sommer but included her because she was Kicked out.
