Prayer Requests

Posted by hsmom - 2004/12/08 23:20

For those of you who pray, I would like to offer up a few things to you, and please add on your own.

For my brother Al, who left for overseas military duty this week. He leaves behind a wife and young son. He is scheduled to be away for 18 months.

For the health of the many people on this board. May this be a place of comfort and peace to all who visit.

For another poster I'll call gypsy, who found out she has cervical cancer, again. This has been weighing on my heart lately, and wanted to offer her my prayers here as well.

As I know how hard it is for you that your brother is gone overseas.

I will keep him, and all the men and women fighting this war, that they can all come home safe and that each have their own angle to protect them.

And that God sends his strongest angels to be around the families left at home alone for so long, to have the strength and courage to be strong till their love one comes home.

I will also make special mention of "gypsy" in my prayers when I pray for all my Chat room friends here each night.

Hugs

Hsmom,

It is just another reminder for us to keep all people in the Military in our prayers.

I have several friends in the military and they are serving. Their families sacrifice so much for them.

I will keep "gypsy" in my prayers.

~~~Heather :)

Yes, curly, it is important to keep all of the men and women serving this country in our hearts and minds.

I got the address for my brother from his wife today. I am off to bake him cookies!

Answered prayers are so wonderful!!!

HSmom I am sorry you had to see your brother off at this time of year. I pray for you and him and his family that you will stay strong while you are apart and look joyfully to the future when he will return to his loving family. You're a lucky sister to have such a special brother. God bless him

Thank you for your prayers. He got bad news today, and his unit is getting split up. I guess this hasn't happened to a similar troop before, and if the Guard knew that would be done, they never would have been sent!! I am off to the post office to mail him his first package, including his favorite homemade cookies! Hope they are edible when they get to him.

Well, I have sent him three packages so far, a birthday box being one of them. I am sending him one a month, so I better get working on the March one!

He is fine, hates sand, and is keeping busy. I pray for his safety, and the changes his son and wife have to make without him in their daily lives. I have more snow pictures to send, to break up the brown he sees every day!! I am thankful for technology, as I can hear from him via email.

This is also a prayer for everyone who has a soldier in their life, fighting for their country, that they can do their job, grow from the experience, and come home to their families and friends.

This site is good, it has names and lists of what these soldiers have asked for. You are no longer advised to put "any soldier" on a package, you should have a name. This site gets updated regularly, has current names and addresses. Hope this is what you were talking about.

The uncle that we have been praying for died this week. Only He knows what was on my husband's uncle's heart when he passed away. He was one of my hubby's favorite uncles, and he was very sweet to us.

Tell your family about your faith, and your love for them, every chance you get. Today, I can be with the rest of the family to share the love I have for them and for my Savior. I think my actions speak louder than my words, so I pray that I can be a good Christian witness in front of a crowd of unsaved family members.

Hsmom I'm so sorry to hear about your husbands uncle.

My heart goes out to you. And you know, I know that when you lead by example you win more people over than if you tried to drum it into their head. They can see for themselves what the Lord can do through you. I have tried for several years to talk to my sister about the Lord and she would shut me down very fast. Then I just started to try and live by example and believe it or not it seems to be working. She studies and is finding her own way and now we can talk and it doesn't turn into a fight. I think it's great and thank God for it everyday. My best to you and yours.

Prayers please

Just found out our neighbor has lung cancer. When he went for tests, they said it is already into his spine. Haven't talked to him or his kids yet. His son married my hubby's sister. He is Grandpa to her kids, of course, and my kids call him Grandpa too. I pray through all of this, the family can grow closer and show love to one another, and live fully!!

Just had to dig this up, my brother is HOME! He left last year, early December, and he is home as of November 19. I am so anxious to see him and be with him. I am so proud of him, and his service to our country. Any buses going to Michigan? I need a ride!! Or, I will just get in my little car and go, I am due for a road trip!!!!

Thank you for all your prayers.

Great to have him home, still haven't seen him, just talked to him on the phone. I guess the marriage didn't survive, she is filing for divorce. He doesn't deserve to be treated this way, please continue to remember him.

It is great that he is home. He is really depressed about his marriage falling apart. My hubby even offered for him to come stay with us a few weeks. That would be neat if he took us up on it.
