
midterms....

Posted by momof2gg24 - 2004/10/06 16:57

As most of you know i am in school full time and dealing with my kids.

This semester I have the pleasure of 3 midterms. I was wondering if you all had any ideas to help me concentrate on school I have all my reading done but as some of you know i can't spell because i type to fastg. So any help woule be great.

B) Slow down when typing Heather...try spelling the words out to MAKE you slow down. :)

What are you asking though? How to concentrate while testing? :unsure:

By the way, the time has gone soooo fast, I can remember when you were signing up for the classes! :ohmy: Still I'm PROUD of ALL YOU are doing to make better for not only Yourself but for Your Children. :)

Wow, midterm tests already!! That is where you have been! I give you so much credit for taking on this adventure. Turn off the computer! :)

Seriously, a special study area, good light, even soft music in the background might help (depends on the subject). Tell the kids it is mommy time, and they can watch a movie or play quietly in their room. Give yourself breaks, and remember F7. I love the spell check! :)

This is said with all sincerity...a teacher friend of mine played Classical Music low in her classroom to help the children learn better. She was a teacher that had maybe 8 students at a time, teaching them parts of the Meap Test.

finals
