
Summer Re-runs

Posted by grizzlys4 - 2006/05/23 21:35

Well, y'all.....looks like it's about that time! Most of the shows are wrapping up this week if they haven't already! So.....we're doomed to reruns and a lack of reality shows this summer, eh??

I know that one network (can't remember which) is debuting Treasure Hunters/Seekers? Kinda like Amazing Race, I suppose.

Any other new shows for the summer that you've heard of??

We always have Big Brother in July. And it's All Stars this season, should be very interesting. ;)

I have but one simple request: please, please, oh PLEASE don't air the Starting Over Couples shows again! I can't bear to listen to Simon the gangsta talk about how his wife should cover up but dress like a ho just for him, or that red-bearded band guy from Dallas whine, or that engaged poser couple that realized they were posers, or... I can't go on....sick: ... I'd rather watch a 1970's BBC documentary on the history of toast.

I guess that'll be a good time for me to start watching, eh?? I've never watched it before.....I'll have to give it a try!! Better than reruns, huh!!!!

"So you think you can Dance" is starting a new season on Thurs...that should be good for a belly laugh!:lol: Always love the first episodes with the screw ups!:whistle: And, for all you Canadians out there.."Canada's next top model" is coming next Wed.! No, of course it's not an ANTM knock off!:whistle:

Big Brother is great, purely entertainment. Locking up 12? people in a house for the summer all competing for half a million dollars it can get very interesting. If you decide to watch there is a website it is www.tvclubhouse.com and they have viewers on there that subscribe to the 24 hour live feeds and they post what is going on in the house 24/7. If anyone EVER had a doubt about how editors can edit a show, that would cure it. When you read those threads, then watch just what they put on tv it is amazing.

While it's not Survivor by no means, it does pass the time...and it's on 3 nights a week. ;)

Amen to that!! As much as I love SO, that couples thing was an experiment gone awry.

Warning Grizz, if in your post above you are saying that you have never seen the couples show, beware! It ticked me off every blooming day. I disliked almost every single one of those people that I ended up thinking maybe they deserved one another, except for the single guy, Michael. He was the only one I cared for.

I kept yelling at him everyday, Run for your life! Do not marry that woman! Finally, Yolanda advised them to take a trial separation after they left the house. Even she saw how crazy their relationship was.

Anyway, don't say we didn't warn you.

Who's Yolanda?:cheer: Hehe..just givin' ya a hard time!

As for summer shows, well, we can always fall back on the news, huh? That's the original reality tv..sorta! :-) I forgot about Big Brother coming..when does that start?

July 6th Big Brother starts. I think voting on the houseguests who come back starts June 23 or 26....around that time anyway.

Yeah Debby, I was posting about Big Brother.

Actually, I think I'm one of the few that enjoyed the couples' shows!! I know, I'm definitely in the minority there!! And no, I didn't "like" many of the people and their attitudes, but I enjoyed seeing how the LCs and Dr. Stan dealt with relationship issues in the mix of the other individual baggage.

I did like Troy and Cheryl (not everything they did!) but I want them to make it!!! Call me optimistic!!!

But I have actually never watched Big Brother (even tho I love to watch reality shows, for the most part!!).....so I'll have to check it out and then we can start a thread for it here!!!!

Hey Grizz, I always say I'm not going to watch Big Brother, but then I end up doing it anyway. It is kind of addictive.

Did you start watching Treasure Hunters? I did, and I am hooked. It is like Amazing Race, only there are history type lessons all the way through. I love the show.
