

---

Difficult to Believe

Posted by Boppler - 2006/07/24 10:12

---

Does anyone else find some of Lisa's stories difficult to believe?
I watched the one today where she says she was molested . . .
Nope, don't buy it. From the bit I could see it was more artificial melodrama.

Yes, I do know that there are many women who have actually been molested - I am not trying to do a blanket invalidation here.

However, I also know that there are women who have not been truthful about it. I just do not believe her. I think it's another ploy.

---

Re:Difficult to Believe

Posted by happygirl - 2006/07/24 11:20

---

I believed her story, some of the details did keep changing.

---

Re:Difficult to Believe

Posted by ceilidh - 2006/07/24 19:07

---

Ladies...wrong Lisa!)

---

Re:Difficult to Believe

Posted by LaurenB - 2006/07/26 01:08

---

Boppler wrote:

Does anyone else find some of Lisa's stories difficult to believe?
I watched the one today where she says she was molested . . .
Nope, don't buy it. From the bit I could see it was more artificial melodrama.

Yes, I do know that there are many women who have actually been molested - I am not trying to do a blanket invalidation here.

However, I also know that there are women who have not been truthful about it. I just do not believe her. I think it's another ploy.

I agree.....I do not believe her and more so, this was a peer of hers! Not and adult.....plain and simple, this might not have been the best of circumstances for experiencing sex...but it WAS NOT "Sexual Abuse"! Lisa could have simply walked away from this guy!

I found this whole story demeaning, to those women that have experieced "Sexual Abuse" and "Molestation", by the way, I hate the very word "Molestation", let's just call a "Rape" a "Rape", let's not suger coat it.

In my opinion, this entire story of Lisa's so called "Sexual Abuse", deplorable! It is simply NOT a True story of "Sexual Abuse", just a story of making "Bad Choices".

---