
How wonderful!

Posted by happytrails_200618 - 2006/07/24 22:27

How wonderful is God? I'll tell you something he has done for me. Last week I sent an e-mail to one of the candidates running in our election asking her about starting a program for children who were not raised by thier parents or childrden whos parents had passed away. Well I recieved a response today, and the lady loved my idea and she is going to help me get the program going. All I can say is thank and praise God, I knew that he would answer my prayer. I'm not doing this for myself, it's for the children ad teens who are going through this, but more importnattly it's for the honor and glory of Jesus. How wonderful is God? He can do anything for us. Praise him and his name!:)

Sue Coleman

Re:How wonderful!

Posted by LaurenB - 2006/10/27 00:58

I will be interested in hearing what becomes of this promise.

After all....didn't, "God" get George Bush elected???

Re:How wonderful!

Posted by mejustme - 2006/10/27 10:21

Gosh LaurenB that was mean spirited. No God did not elect George Bush, he is not a registered voter. Americans voted for him. Not me personally, but since it is done in a democratic way I accept it. That doesn't mean I like it and I will vote for a lot of Democrats this year too. There are certain Republicans i will vote for, I decide by the issues.

So Happy Trails have you heard any more? I think that is wonderful news. I know these things take time, so keep praying and keep us posted.:kiss:

Re:How wonderful!

Posted by happytrails_200618 - 2006/10/28 17:45

Thanks so much, I am still working on it right now and we'll see how things go and as for LaurenB and her question well I'll just pray for you on that one and let God show you the answer but trust me God is real ok I know that, in fact He saved my life when I was born. I was born with a hole in my heart and yet here I am almost 20 years old and not ever had any problems from that and I never had any surgery at all for it because God took and mended that hole for me. Then when I was 15 years old he brought me through gallbladder surgery and at 16 He brought me through haveing all four wisdom teeth cut out at once. I was a miracle baby and weather you realize that or not well I don't know but I do know for a fact that God is real and comming back one day to get us all so everyone better be ready. I've seen many miracles in my life just so far, and you have your own opnion as we all do and I advise that you and anyone else who don't know God pick up a BIBLE and read John 3:16 and many other verses and everything. I will continue to pray for her and everyone else, I know that God will take care of it all. Also President Bush believes in God, in fact I saw an interview they had with him on the news and he said quote " I pray when I go for my walk every day and when I work out" so think about that. Believe what you want to, but I know God is real. Mejustme, thanks for the support and back up on here I sure needed that really made me feel much better, I've had a bad day today and that really helped me out a lot. Take care and God bless you always.

Re:How wonderful!

Posted by mejustme - 2006/10/29 01:06

I have found the best way to get through hards times is to let go and let God. I have always benn told and I have found it to be true every time, that God won't give you more than you can handle. Sometimes when things are bad it doesn't feel like it, but find your strength in God and it will be okay.

It appears that you have proved this over many times. You must be a very strong young woman. What an inspiration you are. I hope you are doing better soon.

=====

Re:How wonderful!

Posted by happytrails_200618 - 2006/10/29 21:04

Well thanks for the compliment, I'm just me and well when you're abandoned by your mom and dad at not even a year old you kind of learn to only depend on God. I have learned that God will always carry us and deliver us through everything we face and like you said He will not give us more than we can handle. I also wanted to point out that God isn't the one who really put President Bush in the White House, the voters did. I wasn't old enough to vote then, but in the next Presidential election you better believe I'll be there and vote. I was going to register on my b-day last year, but it was on a Sunday so I had to wait until Monday to register but I did the day after I turned 18 and now I'm 19 and have voted everytime I had a chance, even just our local election. It's our duty as citizens to vote and for those who don't vote sorry to put this so bluntly well no I'm not lol then keep your mouth shut cause you didn't vote so you have no right to complain at all, and instead of talking down about the president we need to stand united as a nation and pray for him that God will grant him the knowledge and everything he needs to lead this great nation we live in and love. We are to support one another and pray for each other, not drag others down, or so called "dig up dirt" on people. Think about it ONE NATION UNDER GOD. Also IN GOD WE TRUST. Hello duh that says it all right there, also another thing about President Bush is that he is a born again Christian. As long as we have God, we have all we need and have nothing to fear. In fact it says in the BIBLE If God be for me who be against me? God is my strength of whom should I fear. well just read it for yourself and you'll see, but I know without a doubt GOD IS REAL!

=====