
tragic murder

Hello my S.O. sisters. I haven't posted for a while ,but still come back and read latest news. I had terrible news last Friday. I got a call that my 22 year old neice was shot in the face and died in ambulance on the way to hospital. Amber my neice was 6 months pregnant and the med people did a emergency c-section for a lil' baby girl who is currently fighting for her life. You can probably type in Amber Robey of Anderson S.C. was killed and it might pull up the story. The baby went from 10% last Friday morning to 70% Friday evening. When we were getting ready for funeral Sunday morning we got a call that the baby (Hailey) had a heart attack and bleeding in brain.... Now she is in stable condition and still fighting. Amber my neice moved to S.C. because her friend (who shot her) asked to come down there and start a new life. The girl is in jail on murder charges, but her lawyer is using the self-defense move. The sad part is Amber called her parents wednesday and asked to come home because she wasn't happy down there. My brother-n-law went Friday morning to send money western union for Amber after talking to her Friday morning at 9am. He told Amber to take her Tv to pawn shop because she couldn't carry it on bus. My sister called Amber at 9:30am but no one answered. The murder must have happened in that time frame. Cindy took Amber and boyfriend to pawn shop. There was an arguement because tv scratched the girls car, and friend left Amber and boyfriend at pawn shop. Amber and boyfriend walked back to their house and Amber went next door to get her purse. Amber knocked on door several times and as Amber was going back to her house friend came out of her house and another arguement ocured then Ambers last words were "what are you going to do Cindy Shoot me"? Then she shot her in face with shotgun which went through jaw and shattered spine. My sister and brother-n-law are going nuts with grief, so PLEASE say a prayer for my Sister and husband and baby and Amber's 2 year old named hunter.

Kgurl... that is terrible... of course I know I will pray for that baby!
My thoughts and prayers are also with your family as you go through this mourning period for your niece.

Oh K-gurl.....I'm so sorry. Although there's not much anyone can say, just lean on any of us here if we can do anything. You and your family and those precious little babes will be in my prayers! Sending hugs!

I wish to thank each one of you for showing support for my family at this very sad time. I think my family is still in shock of this, because nothing like this has happened to our family, and I must add that it should NEVER happen to anyone! I talked to my sister today and it seems like the baby's kidneys are now not functioning like they are suppose to. I feel drained, but wanted to put this out. I have talked to my meat man at the grocery,to the lady at check out,a woman shopping,several neighbors, but still feel empty. You people are my biggest support system, and I love you all!

much love to all of you,

I'm generally a private person, but this year my sister was diagnosed with a serious illness, and I was beyond consolation... I would cry and cry until I thought no more tears would come, and then I would cry again. I shared my grief with my husband, my daughter, and my friends, and still it was not enough.

And then I posted about it here... I need to tell you it was so helpful, and such a relief to write about it. I was never a journal person, but writing about my feelings here was, and still is such a relief. I think the difference is getting supportive, caring feedback. There is a lot of wonderful people at SOT, and a wealth of knowledge. This site is great for fun, but it is also great for the love, support and cyber hugs.

My sister is a part of me... her troubles are part of mine... so Kisergurl I will think of you, and hope you feel free to let your feelings out.

CYBER HUGS
