
Religious Discussion

Please note that there is a section of the forum specifically for discussion about spiritual and religious topics. This is the only part of Starting Over Talk where such discussions should be taking place.

I have received complaints from several members who feel that the SOT site has a religious tone to it. These members feel very awkward here because they do not practice the same religion (or any religion at all) as some very vocal members.

From this point on the only part of SOT which is allowed to have any type of religious / spiritual discussion is the Spirituality Forum. This also includes signatures which should not have any type of religious reference in them.

I know that this is going to upset members of SOT. Please remember that this is being done because it is what is best for the SOT community as a whole and is not an attack on anybody's religious beliefs.

Please note that this is a final decision and is NOT open for further discussion.

Religious discussion is also permitted in the Book Club Forum if it pertains to the subject of the book being discussed.
