I was surprised how much personal info is shared. But it sounds like it is positive news regarding Mr. Love a lot...

I wish her much happiness.

I am an attorney who does primarily divorce law. I see so many people who are divorced 2 and 3 times and who are living in blended families. Of course, I am the one who gets to see the ones with serious problems that can't be worked out outside of court, for the most part.

The anger and resentment that last between parties for years is shocking. In our county, parties must go through mediation and parenting classes before they can have a trial on custody. Many times it doesn't matter. Everybody wants it their way and the vindictive games are unreal.

To become involved with a person who must co-parent with an ex is a big challenge. If anyone has the tools for it, I say Rhonda does. What I don't know is if she is willing to put up with the petty stuff that usually comes along with it. I wish her good luck.
