
Rhonda - 12/26 new blog

Posted by KPW1956 - 2006/12/27 18:15

I know many of you hate the blogs..and I was going to just keep an eye on them and see if there were any info in future ones regarding new projects or SO related developments..

This blog is pretty much setting the tone for fearless living (individual) for the new year... (Not a personal discourse or what's going on in her life..)

She also mentions that SO is showing in the Netherlands, Israel and New Zealand. (She is hearing from viewers in those areas..)

At least we can pass the word that the show is being seen somewhere !

<http://www.fearlessliving.org/blog/rhonda>

The links to the blog are always the same.. so I won't notify of updates unless something specifically related to SO shows up!

Hope everyone has a Happy New year!

=====

Re:Rhonda - 12/26 new blog

Posted by mazzy - 2006/12/27 19:03

KPW... thanks for the updates.

BTW... I was surfing the TV channels and tuned into 5 minutes of Bad Girls... I couldn't take more than that... LOL. To think that the producers lost a quality show like Starting Over, and came up with Bad Girls... what were they thinking... I hope they don't find an audience for this crap... excuse the language... it would be a shame for young people to be exposed to such trash.

JMO

Mazzy

B) B) B)

=====

Re:Rhonda - 12/26 new blog

Posted by hermitwoman - 2006/12/29 21:47

:) Hey, check out the most recent blog. She alludes to perhaps a new show on the horizon. Could it be? I don't want to get my hopes up (too high) Thanks for posting the blog link though.

=====

Re:Rhonda - 12/26 new blog

Posted by KPW1956 - 2006/12/30 00:24

Woah! This blog is dated the 28th... and definitely alludes to something.. It's possible that it might just be a local gig...or doing a pilot show... We can keep our fingers crossed..

But I think she was also making it be known...that she has something to sell on EBay..

I can't understand why people would buy a car on ebay.... But maybe she's counting on a fan to buy it..

Thanks hermitwoman for causing me to look sooner than I normally would... She's written 3 blog entries in 10 days or so.. That's a record for her I think!

I do hope she shares more of what's going on. It was mentioned at one point near the end of the show that she was collaborating with Dr. Stan.. so I do hope he's involved...

It might be something similar or totally different than the SO format.. But I'll be interested in checking it out!

=====

Re:Rhonda - 12/26 new blog

Posted by Nadia - 2006/12/30 00:42

Thanks for the update!

Just a few questions....

1. If this was such a grown up decision well then why wouldn't she make a grown up decision and buy her own car?
2. And does she live with this man now?

A woman of her age should have her own car doesn't have to be new can be old...I mean she isn't married to the man and any thing can happen like you never know Mr. Love-A-Lot may not love her a lot one day and then what will happen to this SUV that they both purchased?

Oh and don't get me wrong.. Sure I do like her but she is a strange lady, sometimes she just doesn't make any sense.

:dry: :S

Post edited by: Nadia, at: 2006/12/30 00:44

=====

Re:Rhonda - 12/26 new blog

Posted by Nadia - 2006/12/30 01:02

Oh and one more thing,

she says "Mr. Love-A-Lot lives in the mountains of Colorado. Because of that, I now live in the mountains of Colorado."

She sounds like she needs to be attached to hips with this man! Why is she changing her life for this man that once again is not married to?? I mean a long distance relationship can work if the feelings are strong and there for each other.. the poor man probably was trying to get away from her trying to catch some fresh air in the mountains.

I don't know.....

but you see what I mean.. or is it me?:S

=====

Re:Rhonda - 12/26 new blog

Posted by KPW1956 - 2006/12/30 01:11

I guess I just took it to mean that the convertible is not very practical for where they are. I didn't look at the ebay listing...but it might be a smaller car too... Mr LaL... has a daughter...and I'm sure it isn't very family friendly.

She mentioned that the convertible was in storage for 7 months.. It didn't say they didn't have 2 cars.. I mean I don't know very many families who have less than 2 cars.. She just mentioned the type of car they bought.. because it IS more practical for that area..

I thought she mentioned that she was going to buy a lexus when she went back to L.A. or maybe lease it..

I also just took the blog entry as saying her situation was carefree when she bought the convertible in the first place. Something she didn't normally resort to. I think she sees herself changing as happens to the best of us!

=====

Re:Rhonda - 12/26 new blog

Posted by doxygirl - 2006/12/30 01:54

Nadia wrote:

Oh and one more thing,

she says "Mr. Love-A-Lot lives in the mountains of Colorado. Because of that, I now live in the mountains of Colorado."

She sounds like she needs to be attached to hips with this man! Why is she changing her life for this man that once again is not married to?? I mean a long distance relationship can work if the feelings are strong and there for each other.. the poor man probably was trying to get away from her trying to catch some fresh air in the mountains.

I don't know.....

but you see what I mean.. or is it me?:S

I know what you mean Nadia. I read Rhonda's comments the same way. She strikes me as a very dependent woman who will make any adjustment to accommodate this man. I think her work - striving to show others how to live "fearlessly" - is her way of still trying to do that herself. And there's nothing wrong with that because the process of growing is ongoing for all of us. But as a role model, well, she doesn't seem to model some of the things she preaches. Others mentioned in another thread, "Rhonda - New Blog 12/10" in Coaches and Consultants, that the dating exercises Rhonda gave may have reflected her own issues with men. I think what troubles me about her is not that she isn't perfect or still has insecurities, which is true for everyone, but that she doesn't seem to notice any inconsistency between what she teaches and what she does. That affects her credibility, for me anyway.

=====

Re:Rhonda - 12/26 new blog

Posted by Nadia - 2006/12/30 02:08

You said it better doxygirl than I could have explained.

I read her blog in August 22nd Mr. Love-A -Lot need time alone.? Hmmm I wonder why??

ok..

Then in a September 24th blog she's with him again participating in a shared parents support program with Mr Love a Lot's ex?

I think he calls the shots on this relationship...and she just doesn't know it. She's just to busy googoo gagaing over him.

:blink:

=====

Re:Rhonda - 12/26 new blog

Posted by Nadia - 2006/12/30 02:08

duplicate post.

Post edited by: Nadia, at: 2006/12/30 02:11

=====

Re:Rhonda - 12/26 new blog

Posted by planetcolorado - 2006/12/30 13:10

I couldn't agree more! SO had so much to offer and Bad Girls Club is simply awful. I couldn't take the exploitation of a young woman's severe drinking problem for the sake of profit. The producers need to send Iylana and Rhonda into that house for a month - now that would really be something.

Healthy New Year!

=====

Re:Rhonda - 12/26 new blog

Posted by Debby - 2007/01/02 18:29

I'm confused....does Rhonda love the man or really love the convertible? She says both. It does seem to me that she is really smitten with this man.

I wonder how she met a man from Colorado in California when filming the show. How long has she been living there? Wasn't she living there the last season of SO? So, did she already know this man then?

I have many questions about that arrangement. Something about it just sounds odd. I guess I have been in so many situations that sound sorta like hers, that I am too skeptical. I hope it does work out for Rhonda. It's just that whenever you see one person in the relationship doing most of the rowing, and the other just sits there, you question how long the relationship will last if the rowing partner puts down the oars. From what she says, I get the feeling that she is the one rowing and not Mr. Love-a-Lot. Perhaps we are not getting the full picture.

At any rate, having financial ties with a love interest and no marriage, can get you burned bad, unless you have a contract to protect yourself.

I did enjoy Rhonda's latest blog. I was feeling much the same way before I read her blog. Maybe that radio show she did helped me more than I know! LOL

=====

Re:Rhonda - 12/26 new blog

Posted by planetcolorado - 2007/01/02 19:10

What I know for sure about relationships is that if you don't put yourself out there and take a risk you will never know what can be. Rhonda is doing what she thinks and feels is right for her. I believe she is trusting her instincts and her intentions and hopefully he is doing the same. Besides Colorado sure is a great place to live.

=====

Re:Rhonda - 12/26 new blog

Posted by Debby - 2007/01/03 12:29

I have never been to Colorado, but, from what I have seen and have been told, it is a very beautiful place to live for many reasons. However, Rhonda has mentioned several times that it bothers her that she has not met friends there....at least not friends that she considers close.

I think Rhonda is definitely taking chances with that relationship and that is something I guess I have been so burned on that perhaps I am too skeptical as I said earlier. This is something I must work on.

=====

Re:Rhonda - 12/26 new blog

Posted by KPW1956 - 2007/01/03 13:14

I thought her Institute was based in Colorado... Long before the beau showed up... Just perhaps a different city or maybe she only lived there in the off season..

The institute is based in Boulder.. Not sure if it always was.. or if she moved it from one city to another to accomodate her personal life.. But I'm positive it was Boulder during SO season 2..

http://www.fearlessliving.org/about_us/contact_us

Re:Rhonda - 12/26 new blog

Posted by planetcolorado - 2007/01/03 15:05

Yes the Fearless Living Insitute is in Boulder. I bumped into Rhonda a couple of times out and about in Boulder during SO hiatus. She isn't living too far away from the institute living in the Colorado mountains, probably no more than a couple hours drive.

I didn't mean to minimize it - it is really hard to take risks in relationships. The challenge is we never know until we try and trying takes trusting ourselves (one of my issues). And when it turns out badly then it makes it more challenging for the next time.

I sympathize with Rhonda about making friends. I find it's more difficult to connect with people as I get older.

Re:Rhonda - New Blog Entry

Posted by Nadia - 2007/01/11 01:24

Jan 10/07 - New Blog Entry

Just wanted to mention that Rhonda has updated her blog. Nothing really exciting (MO) She talks about her 6 day retreat she was on.

Re:Rhonda - New Blog Entry

Posted by Debby - 2007/01/11 13:30

I admire anyone who can be silent for 6 days! I am a private person and spend a fair amount of time alone and I actually enjoy my alone time, however, if I sat and thought about me and my life without speaking for 6 days, I'm afraid I would go crazy. I think you must have a really great life to do that. Maybe it sounds like avoidance, but, if I dwelt on all the issues in my life for that long, I think, it would put me more into a state of anxiety than tranquility.

I do enjoy sitting on the beach and just relaxing without any music or agenda, but, I do like to have something to read after an hour or so of just resting. Rhonda must have a very disclipined mind.

Also, the girl she refers to is actually her boyfriend's daughter...correct???? Do people normally refer to their boyfriend's child as their child? She doesn't have a daughter of her own does she? I had thought she didn't.