
howdy do

Posted by koolaidmom - 2007/03/17 10:29

HI!

I'm a fan and mourner of our beloved SOH I thought I'd come on over here and see how others going through withdrawals are doing, and perhaps make some friends too!

monica :)

><>

Re:howdy do

Posted by KPW1956 - 2007/03/17 11:28

Welcome Monica...

You are indeed among friends here. I hope I speak for the majority here, but I think we all miss SO.

I often wonder how Lisa N. is doing especially when I hear Jet Blue airlines mentioned. It was reported at one point that she was training to be a flight attendant..

If you look at their blogs.. Most of the ones who have them, seem to be doing ok but have had their ups and downs and continue to struggle to some degree like most people.

I think most of us are hopeful that some form of SO will return at some point. I think there is definitely a market for it!

I'm waiting for Bunim Murray's travesty of a replacement (Bad Girls Club on Oxygen) to bite the dust.. although I would hope another producer would take on some type of replacement model.

Again.. Welcome..

><>

Re:howdy do

Posted by Debby - 2007/03/19 12:03

Welcome Monica. This is a great community for SO fans. I know the show still affects my life in some ways. There is definitely a an audience for a show like SO. I hope somebody smart figures that out as well as a way to market it.

Re:howdy do

Posted by bring SO back - 2007/04/13 16:06

Hi Monica & everyone,

The re-runs are still being shown here, and I still schedule around it as much as possible. If I have to be out, the VCR is all set and my family knows they need to leave it alone!

There really isn't another worthwhile daytime show on television, as far as I'm concerned! It is so uplifting & amazing to watch.

Can't say I agree with everything that was on it, but if the shows were ever sold on DVD, I would want every episode!

Re:howdy do

Posted by wish - 2007/04/13 23:32

Wish i had reruns here still miss the show.
