Hi, I was surfing the net and thought about Starting Over. I loved the show and miss watching it. I pray that all the people involved with the show are doing well. I am glad that I found this board it was really a bit of a fluke that I even looked for anything about the show. I had figured that most of the message boards had shut down. Again, I am really glad to have found this board and others who watched the show. :)

There are some great people on this board, none like I have ever found. Some members still keep up with the career progressions of the SO staff and guest. It's nice to know what has happened to everyone.
