The Sopranos

Are there any Soprano fans here? There are only 3 episodes left and I am so scared they are going to ruin it with bad writing. Writers have a habit of doing that on finale shows.

Last night was soooo wild. Tony, the lead mob guy, actually murdered his right hand man and relative, Christopher. I think they were cousins or uncle/nephew or something like that. I was so shocked. The entire show was very strange but exciting.

I know it's kind of a guy show, but I really like and have for years.

I would like another perspective on whether Carmilla, Tony's wife will eventually find out the murders to those close to her that Tony has murdered or ordered murdered.

If you missed it, you can have it played anytime on HBO special select. I think there is a small fee.

I have feeling Tony is going to end up dead.

I think most people think he will get killed or get arrested.

It looks to me that A.J. is now following right in his father's foot steps. The way he is leading those hoodlums to harm people to get money from them and the way he is sitting in they psychiatrist office talking to a shrink. They are just alike.

I figure Tony will pass the torch to A.J. and retire. Maybe he will fake his death and never return. What will become of Carmella? She has some money, but, how would she survive? I guess A.J. can take care of her.

I just can't wait to see how they are going to pull eveything together.

Someone was on the view and said that there will be a lot happening and the most shocking will be the last 5 minutes of the finale. When asked if someone would be killed off, he kinda gave a look that that said yes.

Tony has has a lot of introspection the last 2 seasons. First when he nearly died after his uncle shot him and then when he took the peyote with Christopher's old girlfriend.

I'm also seeing some parallels between the Sopranos and the Godfather epics Part I and II. Tony going out to Las Vegas, remember when Michael left New York with his crime family and moved to Lake Tahoe to operate the casinos? Michael had his brother murdered, and Tony murdered Christopher who was like a brother to him. Very interesting.

If we look for guidance from The Godfather, in Part III, Michael's daughter is murdered because of his involvement in the mob. I hope Meadow isn't murdered. I hope they leave enough of the main characters for them to do a reunion show in a few years.

OMG. Can you believe that show? I couldn't bat my eyes I was so stunned.

First of all, I nearly missed the show. I worked yesterday and didn't get home until the evening. I had to do some housework, cook dinner and get ready for the show at 9:00. Of All Times, my tv and cable started acting up. It happened a while ago and I fixed it but couldn't get it working last night. I was sweating bullets, calling the cable company, unhooking everything and rehooking, rebooting the cable, ....you name it I did it. I thought I was going to have a stroke.....Anyhow, God answered my prays and it finally started working. WHHeeeewwwwww. LOL.

I can't believe so many people got killed. Who were the 2 guys who did the shootings. Didn't the same 2 guys do all the shootings? Why would they kill Tony's enemy that he wanted dead and turn around and kill most of Tony's crew? I don't get it.

Well, I was wrong on my prediction they would set it up sorta like The Godfather, but that's okay. At least most of the characters I cared the most about didn't get whacked.

The ending is open to interpretation and I have my own. I just hope they come out with a movie or a reunion show down the road.

The buzz is that they will be coming out with a movie to tie up all the loose ends.

I hated the ending... LOL... my sister said she wanted her money back... LOL. I thought the cable went out when the screen went black. Oh well... at least the last few weeks were interesting... LOL.

I'm not really upset as I would be if I saw Tony, Carmela, or Meadow get whacked. AJ, wouldn't bother me. LOL.

I still think the guys in the cafe were FBI agents and they were getting ready to arrest him when Meadow walked in. Remember, in the last show, Meadow said she hated seeing her dad unfairly treated by the government when he was arrested and that's why she wants to become an attorney. I think she was getting ready to see him arrested again right there or

One of the men was there to whack Tony and the other was an agent who got wind of it and was there to prevent it. Maybe there was a blood bath. However, if Tony is killed, then there really is no sense in a movie. What would there be with Tony dead. It would be a comedy watching AJ try to run the mob with his silly, accident prone self. You know that's not a bad idea. LOL.

Debby... LOL... I'm impressed. If you ever get tired of the law... you may have a career in writing for HBO... LOL. I liked all "your" versions of a finale... LOL.

Thanks Mazzy. I grew up thinking I would go into writing, television, something like that. LOL.

My best version of the final season, is that I would come into town as Adriana's long lost sister. I seem to be very kind and get a job in a local law office, but my real agenda is to knock off Tony's gang one by one. I'm sort of like a super hero but more human.

I pick off each of the ones responsible for my sister's death in various ways. Kinda like Charles Bronson in his Death Wish movies. I push them off a building, give them poison, etc. They can't figure it out. Eventually Tony figures out what is going on and then he and I have a show down.....Pretty good, uh? LOL.
