
Paris Hilton released from jail

Posted by KPW1956 - 2007/06/07 11:06

Just heard this on the View...

Sounds like they released her because of medical issues and she was reassigned. Sounds like she has been put on house arrest now instead.

Maybe they thought she was having a mental breakdown.. Or someone was being a softy and feeling sorry for her.. Maybe the court system was threatened with a lawsuit.. Who knows... I was very surprised though... She lasted almost a whole 3 days..

I'm sure more info may be forthcoming as to why the medical release.

=====

Re:Paris Hilton released from jail

Posted by MEW - 2007/06/07 11:38

She's suppose to be wearing an ankle brac and "confined" to her home for 40 days.....
Yeah, ok I'm a believer in our system

What would happen if it was you or I who did these things? We certainly wouldn't be on the comps right now.

Our Government needs to take a look at what "Hollywood" is really doing and make it fair that if we do something wrong we pay for it.....why shouldn't they? And I know the answee to what many are going to say.....money.....

=====

Re:Paris Hilton released from jail

Posted by kisergurl - 2007/06/07 12:18

I think it is so sad that our country has been divided between the rich and the poor,first money now the judicial system. The reports are saying that they can't disclose what her medical condition is, but I can guess one thing "withdrawls". I think whatever it is is a poor excuse,there are people who don't go out at night to party and the next minute the medical reason is the main problem for a rich alcoholic drug user is being released. Heck probably 80percent of the prison/jail population have far more serious medical reasons,so why aren't they released? (if not a danger to society):angry:

=====

Re:Paris Hilton released from jail

Posted by KPW1956 - 2007/06/07 12:32

Yeah, somebody's got some 'splainin' to do...

I know there have been some saying that the punishment didn't fit the crime in the first place... But hey, you can't just go willy nilly changing your mind after you impose a sentence. It was already reduced once..

They are caving for some reason.

House arrest for a person who lives in a luxurious mansion hardly seems like punishment. She can afford to have the parties come to her! Enjoy her margaritas while floating in her pool and working on her tan...

Ludicrous..

=====

Re:Paris Hilton released from jail

Posted by Debby - 2007/06/07 12:34

I knew it. If you check my post under the Paris Hilton thread I posted on 5/8/2007 para 4, that I predicted she would get sick and try not to do her time. I was wrong though, because I said the jail has a doctor on staff and they keep you there anyway. I forgot that this was Princess Paris. LOL.

What a joke. How that county retains any respect for themself is unreal. Robert Downey, Jr. eventually had to do his time as did Martha Stewart.

I don't know what her illness is, but if it's mental, she should be in a mental hospital that she can't check out of. In my state, in house time in a rehab clinic is counted as jail time, but you cannot leave the premises for any reason.

My new prediction is that she will figure a way to get the ankle monitor off and go out of the house. She will then make up a story that she was told by somebody who works in the jail that it was okay to do it and then it starts over again.

I don't think she realizes that by leaving the jail this way, she really makes people dislike her even more. I think the cheers for her are going to turn to jeers.

I don't think the public dislikes her because of her money, but because of her prima dona attitude. People don't hate Bill Gates, Oprah, Michael Jordon, etc. because they are rich, it's just the jerks that people dislike who are rich and flaunt their ignorance and feelings of supeiority.

=====

Re:Paris Hilton released from jail

Posted by Tara - 2007/06/07 12:45

This whole thing is just crazy. She should have just paid her fines and accepted responsibility to begin with and moved on. This is costing all of us tax payers money. I bet part of the reason they released her is because it was costing extra money to keep her in there. I'm sure they needed extra security inside and outside of the jail. Having in in jail was more of burden to the system than having her out. I'm sure she also had a whole entourage of staff that were making things very hard on the system too.

=====

Re:Paris Hilton released from jail

Posted by TigerRose - 2007/06/07 14:35

She should have hired a driver for herself to begin with.

=====

Re:Paris Hilton released from jail

Posted by Debby - 2007/06/07 16:07

Tara wrote:

This whole thing is just crazy. She should have just paid her fines and accepted responsibility to begin with and moved on. This is costing all of us tax payers money. I bet part of the reason they released her is because it was costing extra money to keep her in there. I'm sure they needed extra security inside and outside of the jail. Having in in jail was more of burden to the system than having her out. I'm sure she also had a whole entourage of staff that were making things very hard on the system too.

I never heard of anyone having their own private staff in jail, not even Martha Stewart. All the jail has to do is say NO, we don't allow that.

I don't think it was costing them anything more for Paris. In our county inmates pay a jail fee that covers the cost of them being housed in jail. They pay it over time, usually through probation. This LA jail/Sheriff has no credibility IMO.

I have heard that it is being reported that her medical condition is that she was so upset, her psychiatrist said she might have a nervous breakdown if she stayed in jail. It's hard to find words that can express how completely ridiculous that is, if its true.

I don't think she will stay at home, keep on the bracelet, or honor her probation. I don't believe she will ever abide by anyone's rules but her own.

I hope she proves me wrong.

Re:Paris Hilton released from jail

Posted by TigerRose - 2007/06/07 21:58

Paris has been ordered to appear in front of the judge tomorrow morning. The City attorney found out of her release through the news media and the judge that issued the original order did not agree to the releasing of Paris either and it's going to be determined if the Sheriff violated the court order.

It's being said that her Psych got her out due to ... impending nervous breakdown. Another 'source' said that she developed a rash. boggles Spoileditis more likely. If those are the reason... what a complete joke. With a rash.. get oinment, if it's a nervous breakdown... jail is not suppose to be a spa visit.. it's rough.

Also from MSNBC

Although Whitmore said the judge in the case, Michael Sauer, had been consulted, the court statement said the sheriff's department acted alone.

"Sauer ... indicated to the sheriff's department that he would not change his order absent a written application supported by substantial facts," the court said. "No application was made."

Post edited by: TigerRose, at: 2007/06/07 22:12

Re:Paris Hilton released from jail

Posted by kisergurl - 2007/06/07 23:33

TigerRose wrote:

Spoileditis more likely. If those are the reason... what a complete joke.

Hahahaha TigerRose,she is a joke. She probably will put that ankle bracelet on that dog that she supposedly lost,and then say how did that happen. I would almost bet that her mummy paid big bucks to the sherrif's office or to his campaign fund. I was looking at my celebrity rag papers,and I saw 3 photos of Paris before her famous trip to the slammer carrying a bible and all of a sudden selecting books on spirituality. I hope that the judge see's this as an insult to his orders and puts the "Party Princess":sick: back to his original sentence!:pinch:

Re:Paris Hilton released from jail

Posted by Tara - 2007/06/07 23:36

I didn't mean she had her own private staff in the jail with her. However I am sure she had them everywhere else making everybody else jobs in the system harder than they usually are. I know a few years ago we had the shoe bomber in our local jail and that made thing crazy around here which I'm sure required them to pay for more security.

I can only imagine the type of crowds this whole Paris Hilton thing was causing.

Re:Paris Hilton released from jail

Posted by KPW1956 - 2007/06/08 12:04

I'm watching Fox news and they are covering the Paris Hilton saga. Apparently the judge has ordered her back to court and is unhappy that the sheriff's office let her out. A mention was made that Paris thought the appearance this morning could be done by phone.. So now the court has sent authorities to escort her back to the courtroom.

It sounds like she will be back in her jail cell by the end of day if not sooner. The hearing was supposed to start at noon and I don't think she's left her home yet.. More than likely that will just make the judge madder and she may go straight back to jail..

Give her something for the rash for pete's sake!

Quit coddling her! That's what got her in this mess in the first place..

=====

Re:Paris Hilton released from jail

Posted by KPW1956 - 2007/06/08 12:12

They just had Harvey Levin on and he's saying that the way the L.A. County works is that once the judge issues orders, and the person is transferred to sheriff's office than it's out of the judge's jurisdiction and it's the sheriff's call. Harvey claims to know why she was let go and it wasn't a rash or breakdown issue.. Her presence was turning the jail upside down.. and the sheriff wanted her out of there.

Harvey is speculating that she probably will get off and not have to go back. Sounds like it's a battle of the will's between the judge and the sheriff's office..

What a mess..

If Paris gets off... she'll get the last laugh.. What message does that send to these young brash women who revel in their own celebrity?

=====

Re:Paris Hilton released from jail

Posted by Debby - 2007/06/08 12:58

In my state, the Judge can ensure she stay "in custody" either in the jail or in a hospital if necessary. They also can call another county and send her there to jail. That happens here all the time.

=====

Re:Paris Hilton released from jail

Posted by KPW1956 - 2007/06/08 13:36

She's enroute to the court now... They are saying that she was taken away in handcuffs.

One commentator is saying the fact that she was let out is an outrage and she sides with the judge.. Another person is saying that a breakdown could ensue because of yanking her around back and forth..

There seems to be a major bruhaha brewing between the court (judge) and the sheriff's office. Sheriff is saying that the judge has no jurisdiction of the jail..

Tonight's news shows are going to be all over this story tonight and the weekend!

=====

Re:Paris Hilton released from jail

Posted by KPW1956 - 2007/06/08 13:36

She's enroute to the court now... They are saying that she was taken away in handcuffs.

One commentator is saying the fact that she was let out is an outrage and she sides with the judge.. Another person is saying that a breakdown could ensue because of yanking her around back and forth..

There seems to be a major bruhaha brewing between the court (judge) and the sheriff's office. Sheriff is saying that the judge has no jurisdiction of the jail..

Tonight's news shows are going to be all over this story tonight and the weekend!

=====

Re:Paris Hilton is going back to jail

Posted by TigerRose - 2007/06/08 15:12

She has to serve the remainder of her sentences. (don't know if that is the original 45 days or 23 day sminus time served)

Also the judge didn't hear about the Paris phoning in instead of appearing through TMZ

I also heard that the sheriff and the judge argued for 2 hours on jurisdiction.

Does the sheriff has the right to ignore the perimeters of a court order once a prisoner is in their custody... and can determine what punishment is right for a prisoner.. then who is the enforcer and who interpret the laws?

Post edited by: TigerRose, at: 2007/06/08 15:31

=====

Re:Paris Hilton is going back to jail

Posted by KPW1956 - 2007/06/08 16:21

I hear she has already been credited with 5 days. That includes Sunday. She apparently checked in shortly before midnight Sunday evening... (was at an awards show or something a few hours earlier)..

The internet news is reporting that she was crying and saying something along the lines of "Mom, but it's not fair".... Sounds just like a little kid..

If you check out TMZ.com they talk about the sequence of developments today. One piece talked about them perhaps letting her talk to the courts by phone.. But that may have been in the midst of the arguing between the judge/courts and the jail personnel who is responsible for enforcing the courts order.

The judge was clear, that no work release, and no house arrest for her.. when she was sentenced.

In some ways I do feel sorry for her.. she's being made an example and why such a harsh penalty. The commentator's were having a field day with the controversy today.. Rather interesting and hopefully some lessons will be learned today.

One commentator was a medical person who said that those with money can hire people to say anything on their behalf.. I think she was surmising that the mental breakdown was just a guise. She had been out partying on Sunday at some sort of awards show or premiere event.

Has anyone heard her father weigh in on issues related to his daughter? You only ever hear about her mother...

=====

Re:Paris Hilton is going back to jail

Posted by Debby - 2007/06/08 16:30

I doubted the medical problem, but what ever it was, it cleared up quick, because later that day after she got home she had Sprinkles Cup Cakes deliver cup cakes to her house. I saw that. I also heard she called in her hair stylist and makeup person.

It's funny. Whenever I am sick, I don't feel much like cup cakes and having my hair and makeup done. LOL.

Re:Paris Hilton is going back to jail

Posted by Debby - 2007/06/08 16:32

You know I wonder if the Sheriff is afraid that the Hilton's could help financially with his opponent's campaign in the next election.

There is really nothing illegal about that. He could be scared to not back down because in 4 years he could really be in trouble if his opponent had all that money behind them.

=====

Re:Paris Hilton is going back to jail

Posted by KPW1956 - 2007/06/08 16:44

re: the money election element..

But i think in this case, people are getting wise to the excesses that monetary influences have. It's almost a type of corruption... I hope the vast majority of people vote the sheriff out.. Do you know when the next election is? That should be interesting!

I don't think it's very fair to have 2 different standards of how the law is enforced or interpreted.

One for the 'have's' and another for the 'have nots'...

I think the majority of people were put off with her getting out after a mere 3 days...

Could Swarznegger as Governor, commute the sentence? Or affect the dispute in some way. Maybe they'll make her serve a week and let her out on good behavior...

Post edited by: KPW1956, at: 2007/06/08 16:48

=====

Re:Paris Hilton is going back to jail

Posted by wish - 2007/06/09 00:39

Paris is being made the poster child for anybody who has lost a loved one to drunk driving and it is wrong, cruel she does not deserve to be in jail, she needs her mom to help her understand how serious drinking and driving is.

=====

Re:Paris Hilton is going back to jail

Posted by KPW1956 - 2007/06/09 01:03

Wish, I wasn't sure what exactly the original offenses were so I did a bit of research. Not sure how accurate wikipedia is... but it mentions the sequence of events and infractions that caused her to be where she is..

The bio mentions that she moved alot while she was growing up..and attended several schools and dropped out of high school and got her GED. It would probably be a good idea for her to go back to school!

This wikipedia piece mentions that in 2004 she was working with Sean Combs (Puff Daddy) trying to help get the vote out. She apparently drew criticism, because she herself had never registered or voted..

This does mention several traffic offenses... She was caught driving on a revoked permit twice.. The original offense was DUI.. The second time she was caught driving she was doing 70 in a 35 zone with her headlights off at night. When the judge or D.A. found out she hadn't pursued court ordered alcohol education programs.. her probation was revoked and she was ordered to serve the time.

I think at 26 years of age...she's old enough to know better. Or should! She doesn't need her mommy to bail her out of this one.

Here is a link to the wikipedia info.. It's up to date including the shenanigans of the last couple of days...

I have no reason to believe the basic points of the information aren't true. I know some have criticized wikipedia.. But it sounds about right..

http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Paris_Hilton

Post edited by: KPW1956, at: 2007/06/09 01:15

=====

Re:Paris Hilton is going back to jail

Posted by desireedreamer2005 - 2007/06/09 05:52

wish wrote:

Paris is being made the poster child for anybody who has lost a loved one to drunk driving and it is wrong, cruel she does not deserve to be in jail, she needs her mom to help her understand how serious drinking and driving is.

wish, no offense, but Paris' parents are a huge part of her problem. She deserves to go to jail and maybe this will straighten her up. She is spoiled, irresponsible and out of control. I hope she has to do the entire 45. I heard they have her in the medical wing now. She is so upset that they are worried she might harm herself. Please!!!! That is a load of crap. She is throwing a tantrum in hopes of getting her way. Paris needs to grow up.

=====

Re:Paris Hilton is going back to jail

Posted by TigerRose - 2007/06/09 08:19

It's seems accurate KPW. It's more than a DUI. When she was pulled over (after her license was suspended) The officer told her she was not suppose to drive... period, and made her sign a statement that she now understood that she was not allowed to drive until she got her license back from the state. She threw the signed paper into the glove box (it was still there when she was stopped the 2nd time)

During the trail she told the judge that she thought the officer was wrong and didn't verify because her publicist said she could drive if it's work related. She also said that she didn't have time to contact her lawyers and she never read any mail from the courts either because she "has people for that"

She's where shes at right now because she refused to accept responsibility of her action. She held up the court, she basically didn't take her legal problems serious. She gave a generic "I've learned my lesson". It wasn't about the DUI it was about ignoring the punishment given to her for the DUI... she really came across that the punishment wasn't really meant to be followed by her and that the law wasn't that big of deal for someone like her. (hence going to her publicist instead of going to her lawyer)

I do question her maturity level. She seems quite stunted. I do know that her siblings have made something of themselves other than a media object. The mother is a huge activist and stands on her own. I do think Paris is going through the typical tantrum. Maybe she learned awhile back that if she throws herself into a mental frenzy that she gets what she wants... people feel sorry for her and feel that mentally she's delicate and don't confront her as often. How she handled the whole things kinda says that she handles life by ignoring the unpleasant things, sweet talk what she can't just ignore or fend ignorance and when dealing with the court.. she couldn't get out of it by ignoring/ sweet talking/ fending ignorance and therefore had a melt down.

Post edited by: TigerRose, at: 2007/06/09 08:29

=====

Re:Paris Hilton is going back to jail

Posted by KPW1956 - 2007/06/09 16:33

According to TMZ and I think I heard it from another source too...is that she really isn't coping well and not eating or sleeping and she's crying alot.. TMZ says she's being given pyshcotropic drugs.

You'd think the medication would sedate her a bit.. and help her cope.

She's really not coping very well for someone that is only looking at a couple weeks of incarceration...

I wonder if she's playing it up...(and I'm suggesting she probably is...) to force the authorities to back down and get her out of there again..

I'd think they'd let you have books or something..I wonder if she knows how to read though..

I also wondered if she had any sort of substance abuse problem.. It could be adding to her weird behavior..

Just considering the amount of time she was sentenced too. The drama doesn't mesh with it...

She needs to toughen up and deal...

I wonder what the majority of the celebrity community is thinking about the situation?

It's actually pretty comical!

=====

Re:Paris Hilton is going back to jail

Posted by TigerRose - 2007/06/09 17:08

I just read an article that said that many of Hollywood is not rallying behind her... a few said they felt sorry for her, a couple say it's unfair, but the majority seems to not care. Hollywood has little love for jailed Paris Hilton

Well I heard somewhere.. can't remember if it was from Barbara Walters or not... but I remembered right... her mother always felt she was a special and was an emotionally delicate child. That she was worried about what her daughter would do when she became an adult. I may be wrong though...

I do agree with you, I do think she is making the most out of it. The press is all over it... and not sure if she recognizes the more she acts out the more she looks like a fool. I'm sure when she gets out she'll tell the world how horrible it was. She was very vocal to begin with that it's unfair to put her into jail.

Also the sheriff again reiterated that the sentence was too harsh for such offense. I don't understand why he didn't send her to the medical facility to be 'officially' evaluated. That way he had a stronger case for releasing her tho he probably just wanted to make sure HE got her out ASAP instead.

=====

Re:Paris Hilton is going back to jail

Posted by grizzlys4 - 2007/06/10 17:18

Working on an ambulance and responding to accidents involving drunks.....I'm sorry but I'm a major advocate for automatic jail sentences for drunk drivers!!! I can't begin to describe the scenes to you or the devastation of family members. We even lost one of our younger EMT's who was killed by a drunk driver. They deserve jail time, rehab and never to own a car or license again. That comes from someone who's been up front and personal with the tragedy these people cause and they are extremely seldom first time offenders!!!

=====

Re:Paris Hilton is going back to jail

Posted by desireedreamer2005 - 2007/06/11 01:49

Thanks for your insight Griz. I can't imagine having to deal with scenes like those. Paris needs a wake up call. I predict that this will NOT be it though. She doesn't take responsibility and feels that she is being persecuted. I am afraid it will take tragedy to finally wake her and these other young partyers.

Re:Paris Hilton is going back to jail

Posted by Debby - 2007/06/11 11:43

KPW, you can get books in jail, but they must be mailed to you directly from the publisher's company. That shouldn't be a problem for Paris if she really wants to read. I saw that she took books in with her and wasn't allowed to keep them. Her attorneys should have told her that. But maybe she didn't listen.

I saw something very troubling to me this weekend on tv. They showed video clips of Paris on numerous occasions using racial slurs and other derogatory terms on camera. They are supposedly on Utube. I had not heard of these before, but I saw them. They bleeped out the N word and anti gay words and there were also antisemitic slurs.

The people doing the report said the media dosen't report it when she does this things for some reason, not the way they did with Gibson, Washington, etc. After seeing her using that lanuage on tape repeatedly it makes me think of her not as a poor, sad, child but a spoiled, mean, biogoted person. Yes, it's a free country and people can say anything they want, however if something so mean repeatedly keeps coming out of your mouth, I think it says a lot about your character.

Then I saw Nicole Richie on Letterman last week. She sat relaxed and smiling as she discussed her pending DUI charge. She laughed about it as if it was so UNIMPORTANT to her. What nerve!

This is on top of her invitation to a party at her house recently in which she informed the female guest to start starving, because no girls who weighed over 100 pounds would be admitted. She admitted to saying this but says it was just a joke.

I really don't think most of these "girls" have any clue about life, respect, integrity or common sense. I wonder if it's just too late. I really now wonder if these girls do have some kind of brain damage or learing disability.

=====

Re:Paris Hilton is going back to jail

Posted by TigerRose - 2007/06/11 12:58

Barbara Walters said that Paris called her yesterday.

According to Barbara, Paris said that in the past she acted dumb and she realized that it's not very cute anymore. That she is 26 now and she needed to grow up. That being dumb is not a good image for young girls to look up too. Also that her spiritual avisor said that her soul didn't like the way she was living so she ended up in jail for what she did. She also said that she realizes that she can best use her power (with the media) to better uses.....

I feel it's one of those... wait and see.

=====

Re:Paris Hilton is going back to jail

Posted by Debby - 2007/06/11 13:08

It certainly is not my place to judge anyone on their spiritual conversion, however it seems odd that it comes only when her popularity in the media is going down. I thought it was supposed to be about how you feel on the inside and not what people are saying.

I wish her the best. I hope she makes a change on the inside and then works on helping other people after she gets herself stright.

=====

Re:Paris Hilton is going back to jail

Posted by KPW1956 - 2007/06/12 14:16

I question her sincerity. Time alone will tell..

Seems like it was an abrupt attitude change.. I saw with 36 hours of her being put back in jail that she and her reps had made an announcement that she would drop the appeals and serve her time.

Last night one of the talk shows was talking about her having ADD and claustrophobic... I think they are trying to use whatever to explain her poor behavior.

Her sense of entitlement has been what has gotten her in trouble and thinks that rules don't apply to her just because she has money.

I do hope she has learned some lessons through this experience. She very well could turn her life around and be a role model for others.. But as I say, time will tell. I just have the feeling that she is just playing the media and the authorities. I heard that there is a good chance she would only be in about 2 weeks and get time off for good behavior.. Part of having good behavior would entail having a better attitude about her situation.

=====

Re:Paris Hilton is going back to jail

Posted by Debby - 2007/06/12 18:21

I thought the judge on Friday gave her 45 days again. Then I heard she told Barbara Walters 25 days. Which is it?

If Barbara doesn't stop defending Paris, her mother and the Sheriff! It is pathetic and shameful.

If you heard what she said to Barbara by telephone on Sunday, you know that she once again complained that she was serving a greater percentage of her time than other inmates and that her skin was dry. She really makes me sick.

I have never had much respect for Al Sharpton, but I'm behind him on this one. I even agree with Nancy Grace. WOW. Imagine that... Al Sharpton and Nancy Grace on the same side. LOL.

=====

Re:Paris Hilton is going back to jail

Posted by KPW1956 - 2007/06/12 18:55

I thought I understood that yes they reinstated her original sentence but apparently the sheriffs have at their discretion to let her go after she serves a certain amount. I guess similar to early parole..

I hope she serves the whole time..

I just thought the other day it was ridiculous that they said she had a breakdown, they put her in the jail's hospital facility and supposedly giving her drugs to combat her hysteria.. Then they release a statement a day or 2 later saying she was giving up the appeal process and she would serve her time.. The released statement didn't sound like her at all.. Let's see... Must be that PR man again...

Now we have her talking to Barbara... Heck Barbara knew her mom. Strikes me that it's a ploy to key in on the media..

I can understand if Barbara tries to be ambiguous about the situation. It is such a joke, that she probably doesn't want to 'pile on' because of Kathy Hilton being a friend. I really can understand that.

But hey, I can't understand how someone can do such a turn around of attitudes and suddenly become spiritual.. She's just trying to do damage control.. She was only put back in the jail on Thursday or so..

Susan McDougal (from the Clinton era) thought it grossly unfair for her to have been shown preferential treatment.

Who said something about her having dry skin? If she's trying to 'flake' out... that is really bad... Someone give her a jar of vaseline!

I don't think she gets it yet... She probably doesn't really care.. It's just crimping her style.. I bet she's out before June is over!

=====

Re:Paris Hilton is going back to jail

Posted by Debby - 2007/06/12 19:31

Barbara reported yesterday that Paris complained of dry skin and the fact she didn't have any moisturiser. I wonder if she said that part before of after she announced her spiritual awakening.

Word is her dad is planning a huge "out of jail party." It will probaby be a charity event with the proceeds going to help all those white, wealthy, self-absorped, airheads who like to drink and drive and need money for legal fees, bail and donations to the Sheriff's reelection campaign. Just kiddin. LOL.

=====

Re:Paris Hilton is going back to jail

Posted by KPW1956 - 2007/06/13 09:40

There are fresh headlines this morning..

Looks like her agents quit and that the sheriff involved has a week to document exactly why Paris was let out early and ignoring the presiding judges specific instructions. (no home detention, monitoring or work release)

http://www.eonline.com/news/article/index.jsp?uuid=60932791-f665-4240-a79b-b8189744da38&entry=index&sid=rss_topstories&utm_source=eonline&utm_medium=rssfeeds&utm_campaign=topstories

I also caught a bit on the news about her family being given preferential treatment when they came to visit her.. They supposedly bypassed all the other visitors waiting to see inmates. I think they (inmates) are only allowed visitors on Sundays...

BTW, I meant to mention in the previous post regarding Paris calling Barbara... Does she have phone priviliges? Not sure how they work that in the jail system..

I sure hope they (her parents) don't reward her with a get of jail party... Whether it's for charity or not... It would be a mockery... But I guess that would be pretty par for the course with anything related to Paris.

I saw Nicole on Regis and Kelly a week or so ago.. She showed a clip from The Simple Life. The clip showed Paris trying to use one of those big floor polishers.. It looked like it had been a banquet room or dining room of some kind. She was very emotionless and just let it fly all over the place running over it's own cord and then letting it wreck into table legs and knocking down tables and stuff that was on the tables go flying. The room was a disaster area... What struck me was that she was nither laughing or horrified at what she was doing.. It was almost a deliberate attempt to create chaos and drama for the camera.. Granted it was just a clip and I didn't see the whole segment with Nicole.. Just an odd clip. I think they need to get a real job... I hope the Simple life is cancelled! Oh yeah... wait... another Bunim Murray production! I'm sure he's (Jon Murray) loving all this and may think that it will be good for the show!

Paris has been engaged a couple different times I think. I think she's definitely at a crossroads of sorts... Her maturity level is seriously inadequate and her family seemingly continues to enable her. She's 26 for pete's sake!

Post edited by: KPW1956, at: 2007/06/13 10:10

=====

Re:Paris Hilton is going back to jail

Posted by Debby - 2007/06/13 13:18

Thanks for the link. I will check it out.

I heard that she is in a medical facility room, alone with 4 beds and that she has a phone in the room. The phone in the room part is difficult for me to believe, but I don't know. Everybody but the sheriff knows she does not have a medical condition requiring a medical room. Oh, and Barbara Walters. PLEASE.

Everything about this thing is crazy. Maybe the good side is that it will root out any corruption. There is a website to recall the sheriff. Can't remember the link.

As I said earlier here, Nicole Richie on Letterman last week was pathetic. She laughed when she said she might get jail time.

I also saw a clip of Simple Life where she and Paris were acting as judges for a Little Miss contest. Nicole asked one of the contestants who looked like she was about 7 years old, "What would you tell one of your friends if they told you they were pregnant?" The child stood there looking confused. I don't think she understood. Hopefully. How sick is that?

I guess whenever Paris gets out, we'll see more of the same or a different girl. Any bets?

Re:Paris Hilton is going back to jail

Posted by Debby - 2007/06/13 13:26

That's interesting. The article reports that Sheriff Baca says Paris was ill in part because she didn't have her meds in jail, but Barbara reported Paris as saying that she didn't take any meds.

I think it's going to fly when the lies really come out. Then the Sheriff will resign or be removed, and possibly held in contempt if he lied to the Judge.

Re:Paris Hilton is going back to jail

Posted by KPW1956 - 2007/06/13 13:44

I heard it announced this morning that there was talk about Nicole being pregnant..

That is really sick for Paris and or Nicole to try to intimidate a little kid with an inappropriate question.

I hope that sheriff does lose his position and somebody ought very well to take that phone away from the so called 'inmate'...

That county could be setting itself up to any number of lawsuits! It really isn't fair if she is sitting in a hospital room with a phone and a large room at that.. For the family and Paris herself to get preferential treatment is not going over very well to inmates with legitimate issues and visitors who had to wait their turns! I hear one inmate has been denied use of her prosthetic leg!

I have zippo sympathy for Paris...

Post edited by: KPW1956, at: 2007/06/13 13:45

Post edited by: KPW1956, at: 2007/06/13 14:51

Re:Paris Hilton is going back to jail

Posted by mazy - 2007/06/13 14:21

DUI is a very serious crime... it's a shame our laws and justice system doesn't enforce a consistent... strong penalty.

It sure would benefit Paris if she would choose to really learn from this experience and have some good come from this experience.

Re:Paris Hilton is going back to jail

Posted by Debby - 2007/06/13 14:39

KPW1956 wrote:

I heard it announced this morning that there was talk about Nicole being pregnant..

That is really sick for Paris and or Nicole to try to intimidate a little kid with an inappropriate question.

I hope that sheriff does lose his position and somebody ought very well to take that phone away from the so called 'inmate'...

That county could be setting itself up to any number of lawsuits! It really isn't fair if she is sitting in a hospital room with a phone and a large room at that.. For the family and Paris herself to get preferential treatment is not going over very well to inmates with legitimate issues and visitors who had to wait their turns! I hear one inmate has been denied use of her prosthetic leg!

I have zippo sympathy for Pair...

Post edited by: KPW1956, at: 2007/06/13 13:45

I'm surprised the girl has any fertility with absolutely no body fat. I have heard that anorexics and athletes who get their body fat very low are infertile. They stop their periods until they put weight on. Still, if she is, my goodness. I really feel for that child. I don't want to even think about it.

=====

Re:Paris Hilton is going back to jail

Posted by KPW1956 - 2007/06/13 14:49

That was my thought as well... That she was fertile at all...

I don't know how reliable the report was.. You know how those unsubstantiated rumors go...

Did a quick search found this... But I think I heard it on another cable news show.. This article is dated the 6th... Surprising that here it is a week later and not much more has come out or just another blurb about it..

<http://www.msnbc.msn.com/id/19033891/>

She will definitely be at risk... as thin as she is... and obviously the baby will be too!

=====

Re:Paris Hilton is going back to jail

Posted by Debby - 2007/06/13 17:55

Wow, KP. That's pretty odd. You would think the media would be all over it. I guess Paris has gotten all the attention for right now.

Can you see that little skinny girl with a large belly. It's so bizarre. Why would she be going to a fertility clinic in her unhealthy condition? I can't imagine a fertility doctor providing her sperm while she is so sick and obviously in trouble with drugs and/or alcohol. But I guess money talks.

=====

Re:Paris Hilton is going back to jail

Posted by KPW1956 - 2007/06/14 11:37

I just read that Paris has been sent back to the regular detention center from where she was originally supposed to be.

I guess they are still monitoring her but was cleared to be returned.

http://www.eonline.com/news/article/index.jsp?uuid=4fc6b1d7-0e6e-4018-9bae-f148eb44ae3e&entry=index&sid=rss_topstories&utm_source=eonline&utm_medium=rssfeeds&utm_campaign=rss_topstories

Re:Paris Hilton is going back to jail

Posted by Debby - 2007/06/14 17:55

KPW1956 wrote:

I just read that Paris has been sent back to the regular detention center from where she was originally supposed to be.

I guess they are still monitoring her but was cleared to be returned.

http://www.eonline.com/news/article/index.jsp?uuid=4fc6b1d7-0e6e-4018-9bae-f148eb44ae3e&entry=index&sid=rss_topstories&utm_source=eonline&utm_medium=rssfeeds&utm_campaign=rss_topstories

The saga continues.....LOL.

=====