
Paris Hilton update as of 6/23

I heard this last night on the radio. NBC and ABC were apparently competing to gain an interview with Paris Hilton.. but now they are saying they won't.. Which is good.. Deny her the attention she seeks and the ability to profit from her experience which was supposed to be punishment. But I'm sure we can rely on Entertainment Tonight to fork over the money... Someone will unfortunately be willing to pay her for interview. Maybe she will donate the money.. as someone mentioned she might do.

I just saw on yahoo news on the net that she is being released on Tuesday.

I guess we'll all get a chance to see what a changed woman she is...

I read an article about Paris calling Seacrest and told him "I just realize that the media used me to make fun of and be mean about it,"

It's said that she got so caught up in the limelight that she just now realizing that it wasn't a true adoration. Luckily my daughter thinks Paris is not an ideal role model.

I do hope this time in jail she really seeing things clearly and not just trying to vie for a better image.

Yes, things will be all about Paris when she is released. I just read that she will be appearing on Larry King. I actually think they should have thrown her mother in the slammer with her. When the rich think they are too good for us commoners, it makes my skin crawl.:blink:

This morning they showed portions of the Larry King show with Paris.....BORING!! Even one of the people said that it was a wasted hour on TV!! I bet it was. Paris had said that she wants to help the women!! And a few other causes.....How about MADD or drug abuse!!

All I have to say is "Put up or shut up!"

Another person had stated that we are making to much of the "Paris trap" and one magazine will not publish anything about her.....people want to read other stories!!

Let's hope it catches on. The trouble is that if Paris gets ignored, she may lash out and do something illegal just to get back into the spotlight.
