SO trivia question

I know it hasn't been that long ago, but I thought about one of the hg the other day who Iyanla had a special bond with. Posters here speculated that it was due to the loss of Iyanla's daughter to cancer. Who was this hg? I can see the things Iyanla said to her, but I can't see who the hg was. Does anyone know who I am referring to?

Drawing a blank here. I'll think about it and get back to you if I remember anything.

I know what you are talking about but can't think of who it was either!

I think you're right! Rachel makes sense because she had lost her mother to cancer as a child. Didn't Iyanla actually go to church with her too?

I kept thinking of Jill and Allison because of their health issues, but I think it was Rachel that she got very involved to the point that posters thought she was maybe a little too personally involved with her.

Thanks KPW.

Allison had cancer... pre-cancerous genes made her get masectomy... Iyanla did favor her also.

Just wanted to make sure you had the facts straight. Or as I remember them..

Allison had breast cancer and a mastectomy. (maybe both?) She also had to go through chemotherapy. She arrived at the SO2 house for the first time shortly after finishing her treatment.. Her hair was just growing back in and was very white if I recall correctly or at least salt and pepper..) She had a makeover and had it dyed red later that season.

During the 2nd season they also did a gene test to see if she would have a higher chance of recurrence and it was determined that she did have the specific markers that put her in a high risk category of getting additional female type cancers..

She had to make the decision whether to have a complete hysterectomy which shut down her chances of having children.

I know she had quite alot of extensive surgery in between the seasons..(2 and 3) I think they may have removed her other breast and done reconstruction for her breasts (I think it was the flap type..).. at the same time they did the total hysterectomy. I remember her talking about having been cut from one side to the other..

I remember that she was still dealing with some infection when she came into the house at the top of season 3.

I hope she is doing ok... I liked and understood Allison.
