

---

SO reurns

Posted by gr84me2 - 2007/08/10 00:28

---

Hi all-
I am still watching the Starting Over reruns. I am so fortunate to have a local TV station that is featuring all of Season 2. Today's episode was with Rachael graduating. I recorded and saved this episode, as I found it to be so emotional with the ties between Iyanla and Rachael and with the comments Iyanla made. Iyanla has always been my favorite Life Coach, and mentor. As I might've mentioned in an earlier post, I was first introduced to SO about midway through Season 3, so these re-runs are a real treat. Of course, it was fun to see a few of Season 3 housemates when they first appeared in Season 2....Cassie, Allison, and Sommer.

Keep in touch, everyone!!!!
gr84me2

=====

Re:SO reurns

Posted by Debby - 2007/08/10 08:51

---

You are lucky! I remember looking forward to getting home in the evening after recording SO that day and enjoying the show. I was so touched by most of the stories. I think the lessons helped me as a person as much as they did the hg. LOL. I learned a lot from that show. I still hope something new will come along and capture the magic SO had.

Where are you located? I didn't know reruns were being aired anywhere right now.

=====

Re:SO reurns

Posted by mazy - 2007/08/10 20:19

---

I never saw Season 1... I would love to see it on reruns.

=====

Re:SO reurns

Posted by gr84me2 - 2007/08/10 22:09

---

Hi There-
I live in southeastern WI. and the SO reruns are being shown on a Milwaukee channel. I am hoping that they will continue to keep this slot open for SO, and perhaps show Season 1. However, that might be pushing it and just too much to hope for, so I'll be happy with whatever I can get at this point.
I, too, have learned a lot from watching. The show is so very therapeutic and it seems to help all who watch. I have jotted down a number of comments made by Rhonda, Iyanla, and Dr Stan to be used toward my own healing. I think this is the most wonderful show to hit TV.
Thanks for your reply! Take care.

=====

Re:SO reurns

Posted by dbmcmommy - 2007/08/13 00:47

---

how lucky for you to see SO. Oh how I miss it. :(

=====

Re:SO reurns

Posted by Hooters - 2007/09/03 17:11

---

Do you guys think that SO reruns will be picked up by any cable stations such as the Style Network or Reality TV? I really wish it would.

---

Re:SO reurns

Posted by Hooters - 2007/09/03 17:18

---

Do you guys think that SO reruns will be picked up by any cable stations such as the Style Network or Reality TV? I really wish it would.

---

Re:SO reurns

Posted by gr84me2 - 2007/09/03 17:23

---

[
I have been thinking for quite a while that SO would be a great show for Lifetime TV for Women. I would be very grateful for ANY station to pick it up. Let's keep hoping!!!!

---

Re:SO reurns

Posted by llovelyanla - 2007/09/06 13:35

---

:ohmy: That's great YOU are watching my alltime favorite show!! I too, miss it so much.....Santa Rosa, CA It's been off the air for over a year now.....Lifetime to carry it is a great idea!

---

Re:SO reurns

Posted by Debby - 2007/09/06 17:17

---

llovelyanla wrote:

:ohmy: That's great YOU are watching my alltime favorite show!! I too, miss it so much.....Santa Rosa, CA It's been off the air for over a year now.....Lifetime to carry it is a great idea!

Are you still a big fan of Iyanla? Do you keep up with her work now days? I heard her talking very enthusiastically about a project she was doing in Atlanta, GA a couple of weeks ago. Do you have any idea of what it might be. I missed the details.

---

Re:SO reurns

Posted by gr84me2 - 2007/09/14 00:16

---

Where have you been hearing Iyanla speaking??? Yes, I am still a huge fan of hers, but haven't heard a thing about her since the SO site was taken off.

Bad news, however, I am no longer able to see the SO re-runs. With the new Fall line-up on TV, they replaced the SO re-runs with Martha Stewart. How revolting!!!! Can anyone tell me what happened with Tess? They were having problems with her and she had been put on probation, but we never got to see the rest of Season 2. Thanks for any info you can give me. Now I am like the rest of you....SO-less!!!!:angry:

Let's keep hoping that SO will come out on DVD..... or possibly on Lifetime, Style or Oxygen... something! Anything!!!

keep in touch everyone.

---

Re:SO reurns

Posted by Debby - 2007/09/14 11:00

---

You ladies will have to help me out with what happened to Tess. I'm trying to remember. Wasn't she the one who was such a pain to everyone when they took that trip to Las Vegas? Wasn't she the one who got very angry and threw a plate or fork onto the coffee table. Ane wasn't she the one that one of the girls was so afraid of? I'm thinking she was asked to leave or chose to leave. I'm sure others may remember more details than I do. I'll give it some thought and see if I can come up with more. I do remember that I thought she was a narcissist with a severe personality disorder. Counseling can't really help those people I've heard.

lyanla is a regular speaker on a radio show hosted by Michael Baisden. He is nationally broadcasted and the shows can be found at www.michaelbaisden.com. I have heard on his show at least a half a dozen times, so I think she is on regularly. I like his show. You might check it out.

---

Re:SO reurns

Posted by gr84me2 - 2007/09/14 14:36

---

Thanks for your reply! I will check out Michael Baisden. Yes, Tess was the one that threw the plate, and was a general pain in the butt in Las Vegas. She was so irritating, that we didn't think she would last on the show. No one could seem to get through to her, and as you said, she was narcissitic.

I purchased a quite a few of lylana's books, and from time to time, go to her website, Inner Visions. How did Rhonda come out with her attempt to get her radio show? Has anyone heard?

---

Re:SO reurns

Posted by Debby - 2007/09/17 10:10

---

Rhonda has been going through a tough time with the breakup from her boyfriend. Her blog indicates she has being doing a lot of self awareness/meditative work on herself.

I never heard anything else about the radio show programs. I hope if something materializes she will share it with us on her blog.

---

Re:SO reurns

Posted by segerrocks - 2007/09/20 01:42

---

Debby wrote:

You are lucky! I remember looking forward to getting home in the evening after recording SO that day and enjoying the show. I was so touched by most of the stories. I think the lessons helped me as a person as much as they did the hg. LOL. I learned a lot from that show. I still hope something new will come along and capture the magic SO had.

Where are you located? I didn't know reruns were being aired anywhere right now.

I would love to know the answer to that one too. You are, soooooo lucky. I didn't think they were airing any re-runs either.

I wish there was something we could do to bring that show back on TV. I personally don't like that much reality TV but that show was THE BEST. It was about real people needing and getting help. As you stated Debby, you profited from the lessons, so did I. I MISS IT.

Well just look at the message board. You and I aren't the only ones that do:( I loved all the coaches. One was as good as the other. I had no favorites. I will say though I wish I had , had a dad like Dr. Stan.

---

Re:SO reurns

Posted by Debby - 2007/09/20 17:57

---

segerrocks wrote:

Debby wrote:

You are lucky! I remember looking forward to getting home in the evening after recording SO that day and enjoying the show. I was so touched by most of the stories. I think the lessons helped me as a person as much as they did the hg. LOL. I learned a lot from that show. I still hope something new will come along and capture the magic SO had.

Where are you located? I didn't know reruns were being aired anywhere right now.

I would love to know the answer to that one too. You are, soooooooooo lucky. I didn't think they were airing any re-runs either.

I wish there was something we could do to bring that show back on TV. I personally don't like that much reality TV but that show was THE BEST. It was about real people needing and getting help. As you stated Debby, you profited from the lessons, so did I. I MISS IT.

Well just look at the message board. You and I aren't the only ones that do:( I loved all the coaches. One was as good as the other. I had no favorites. I will say though I wish I had , had a dad like Dr. Stan.

I liked Rhonda, Iyanla and Dr. Stan, although, my thoughts of Dr. Stan were not of a fatherly figure. I would rather date him, that is if he were not married. I see him more as an ideal husband. I guess I'm showing my age. LOL.

I don't think it was too much of a secret that many of the hg kinda had a crush on him, espeically the ones near his age. Besides the fact I think he's sexy, I think he is a topnotch psychologist. If you google him you'll see what I mean.

---

Re:SO reurns

Posted by dbmcmommy - 2007/09/20 22:40

---

(I thought about correcting the spelling on reruns but it makes me smile so I'll keeping it there.) :)

My favorite season was the first season. I loved that season the most out of all of them. So many memorable faces and so many wonderful lessons. I miss that show. I want reruns!!! :angry:

---

Re:SO reurns

Posted by segerrocks - 2007/09/20 23:42

---

I think he would be/is an ideal husband. He is very understanding and considerate. He was an ecellent listener. He HEARD EVERYTHING that was said. Most males don't do that. It's no wonder and I don't doubt it that there were many who had a crush on him. But it's no wonder. Most of the girls there never had that kind of attention, someone who actually cared, was genuine etc. His daughters are very lucky to have him as a dad. He seems so proud of them. I say that because I had no one that treated me that way and that's something I missed in life. All girls need that in a dad. I have googled him. Again I was not surprised. He's tops in his profession, and look at what he says. "The most rewarding work I have ever done is with Starting Over, because of the closeness I had with those girls" He was able to interact and socialize, He got to know them so they could know themselves.

I still for the life of me do not understand how they could take a program like this off the air, that did so much for all the girls that were in the house. NOTHING will ever replace it.

That was REALITY, but no one wants to hear the good that's being done. JMO I myself didn't miss a show. I taped it and when I couldn't watch it , I couldn't wait to hear how things worked out for everyone. It became my family. I laughed and I CRIED many times. It touched my heart and I learned so much from it.

As far as dating DR. Stan, uh, I am too old for him for one and I don't want another man. Never did I think of him that way. He is sexy though. I'm sure his wife appreciates that. LOL

---

Re:SO reurns

Posted by Debby - 2007/09/26 11:24

---

---

segerrocks wrote:

I think he would be/is an ideal husband. He is very understanding and considerate. He was an excellent listener. He HEARD EVERYTHING that was said. Most males don't do that. It's no wonder and I don't doubt it that there were many who had a crush on him. But it's no wonder. Most of the girls there never had that kind of attention, someone who actually cared, was genuine etc. His daughters are very lucky to have him as a dad. He seems so proud of them. I say that because I had no one that treated me that way and that's something I missed in life. All girls need that in a dad. I have googled him. Again I was not surprised. He's tops in his profession, and look at what he says. "The most rewarding work I have ever done is with Starting Over, because of the closeness I had with those girls" He was able to interact and socialize, He got to know them so they could know themselves. I still for the life of me do not understand how they could take a program like this off the air, that did so much for all the girls that were in the house. NOTHING will ever replace it. That was REALITY, but no one wants to hear the good that's being done. JMO I myself didn't miss a show. I taped it and when I couldn't watch it, I couldn't wait to hear how things worked out for everyone. It became my family. I laughed and I CRIED many times. It touched my heart and I learned so much from it. As far as dating DR. Stan, uh, I am too old for him for one and I don't want another man. Never did I think of him that way. He is sexy though. I'm sure his wife appreciates that. LOL

I agree. You could tell that Dr. Stan was very invested in the hg and how they grew in the house. Remember when he got all choked up at one of the graduations. I think it was Kim #2. Someone correct me if I'm wrong.

=====

Re:SO reurns

Posted by segerrocks - 2007/09/27 16:48

---

Debby,

Yes, I remember Dr. Stan being choked up a few times. That man is so genuine and has the biggest heart. He will always be a success at his job because he's into it. He sure made my eyes well up a few times. Too bad he doesn't give lessons to so called men and their MACHO attitudes. There are so many that need lessons. There would be many less divorces. Not saying there aren't women who don't need them too. Okay I'm going to quit because That's a whole new topic. It's called R-E-S-P-E-C-T and it's my pet pieve.

=====