
TLC or Bravo... ?

Bunin-Murray must have a real good reason not to even have the courtesy to make announcements ... just remove the show from their site? Leave everyone hanging? I wonder why any professional would do that. Regardless, I would hope another production group would snap up Rhonda and the in-house coaching concept.

Has there been any effort to contact another network to pick up Rhonda Britten? Perhaps doing a Starting Over type show? Probably can't do SO as we know it because of ownership, but maybe they could do something. Coaching Women? I have tried but could not find TLC or Bravo contact info.

Just discovered this board. Hoping the effort of fans yields some remnant of the show we love.

I find it sickening that NBC or whoever didn't even have the courtesy to let Rhonda know that the show was cancelled. In her blog she said no one has informed her of anything.

I'm sure Rhonda had a good idea it wasn't coming back.
