It's gone! Reruns are not airing anywhere at the moment.

B/M is working on a similar show with more drama... It will be aired on the Oxygen network.. But the goals aren't to help women achieve goals or overcome obstacles... supposedly from the title of the show they are "Bad Girls" and 6 of them will live in a house together (in L.A. no less!) while they try to change their 'bad' ways.

B/M's reasoning is that everyone is always so fascinated with the bad girls from all the various reality shows.. Supposedly they'll have at least some celebrities in there.. I guess if they are all bad, it will be harder for them to get along!

I guess that is true a bit with SO too.. Tess from last year, Omorosa... and I am sure there have been a few from some of the other reality shows. I haven't really gotten into any of them.

There was a rumor that Dr. Stan and Rhonda might be collaborating on something. I think eventually something will come along and fill SO's void but for now I am positive "Bad Girls" aint' gonna cut it!

I don't think that show is due to hit the airwaves until winter. Oxygen supposedly ordered 22 episodes. With that #, I'd venture to guess it will be a weekly show..or twice weekly. Who knows??? Maybe they don't even know!

i can't believe they would cancel such a good show. What happened to what's her name that hadn't graduated yet? I can't remember her name at the moment, but that just sucks

That was Niambi. Unless she's still got a MySpace account, I don't know of any way to "check in" on her. I've heard that the SOTV website no longer exists. No great loss, IMO. B/M quit updating it months ago. And, never added a WATN section for their Season 3 HG's.

I can't believe a show with great moral meaning would be ended suddenly. I'd very much still like to see Leah (Season 1), and Bethany and Niambe (Season 3) graduate... as well as be introduced to new ladies with compelling life stories of their own.

I began a petition on gopetition.com, for Bunim-Murray Productions and NBC-Universal Television to bring back Starting Over. If you'd like to sign it.

I signed the petition. And, told them that I wouldn't accept "Bad Girls" as a substitute. But, I think the best way to bring SO back is for everyone to boycott BG. If no one watches that crap, B/M will scrap it. Hopefully for SO!
