Just saw this piece about Bianca Ryan signing a record deal with Columbia records. She'll have a record out in a couple of months!

Here's the piece...

She's such a talent. I hope she retains it as she matures. I used to think that Leeann Rymes was an incredible talent when she was a pre-teen and teen, but, as she grew up, her style and music changed and she turned into what I consider an ordinary singer. NOt sure what happened to her. It was as if she refused to belt out a song with that dynamic voice and chose to sing with a normal ordinary voice that doesn't distinguish her from any other performer.

Bianca does seem to have a fire inside her that shows when she is performing. She is so down to earth and humble about her talent. These are good qualities for someone who desires a career in the entertainment industry. She certainly deserved the million IMO.
