
project runway

Posted by anaya17392 - 2006/10/16 14:17

are you ready for the finale this week! i am. i think it was poor sportsmanship for laura to accuse jeffrey of cheating . i think she is threatened by him and is getting desparate for an edge. but i guess we will find out after they investigate. i don't care for jeffrey but he is very talented, they all are. it seems like the other guy, i forgot his name, was not working too hard on his collection by the time tim gunn showed up. uli had a great looking apartment on the beach, what a life she has already! i would like laura or the other guy to win.

=====

Re:project runway

Posted by mazzy - 2006/10/16 23:33

I'm ready for the finale. I agree... they are all talented. I'm rooting for Uli, but I also like Laura sense of style.

=====

Re:project runway

Posted by grizzlys4 - 2006/10/18 01:50

I'm rooting for Michael! He seems the one to be taking the whole competition the most seriously and wanting the career too. I like how he has stayed very sweet and doesn't seem to have the typical egos in the fashion industry!!

I understand Laura's concern.....and Jeffrey, although talented in his own "style", is too one-dimensional and I hate the nasty attitude and constant mouth!! He wants everyone to feel so sorry for him and so awesome of him to have turned his life around and yet is soooooo disgusting to truly awesome people who never DID the crap he was involved with!!!! :S

Laura is definitely not my favorite either.....but she does really have a nice finished quality to her work.

Uli is really cute and fun.....I'd love to see her collection have some of the fun prints in it, but also some very different pieces!!!

Okay.....guess I rambled on enough about them all!!!!

P.S.....I'm a plus-size "everyday" woman too and I really liked the one outfit that won that competition.....whose was it again???

=====

Re:project runway

Posted by mazzy - 2006/10/18 14:20

Re the everyday woman outfit... I believe Michael won that competition... or maybe it was Uli. Uli had a lot of outfits that could be one size fits all.

I think they are all so talented... even if only one person wins the competition... these people have been out there, and they are having there talent showcased... seems to me they are all winners.

=====

Re:project runway

Posted by grizzlys4 - 2006/10/19 04:22

NOOO

:evil: :evil: :evil: :evil: :evil: :angry: :angry: :angry: :angry:

Well.....proof that Karma does NOT always come back to bite you.....he's still a jerk and an egotistical chauvenist.....oh well.....I guess I'll just have to get over it and know that those other designers WILL succeed as they are incredibly talented!!!!

I think Laura does very beautiful and classy and finished work. She just doesn't take risks.....but she will have a successful line as she does make very wearable, pretty clothing.

Michael is just young, but has wonderful taste and a great eye for women's shapes. He just needs a little time to grow, but he's humble and smart and talented!

Ulli really should have won the competition tonite. She had the diversity of types of clothing, while still having a "point of view" like they all harp on so much. Well.....she also will be a success.

Jeffrey is just a mess.....emotionally and otherwise. He needs some serious self-reflection and some basic fellow feeling about how HE wants to be accepted and treated and treat others the same way!!!!

=====

Re:project runway

Posted by anaya17392 - 2006/10/19 15:29

jeffrey is the one person i did not want to win! that tattoo on his neck is so unflattering, it makes him look even more like a turtle. i was disappointed in the show. from all the collections i would have liked uli to win. laura's collection was so glamorous i would have liked to see some less formal wear from her. michael is good too and he is young so he will have plenty of opportunities from this show. jeffrey's clothes in my opinion are not very flattering or pretty. i think uli got ripped off.

=====