
Extreme Makeover Home Edition

Posted by Debby - 2006/12/06 18:47

They are filming a home makeover in my town of Raleigh, NC. It's been a huge deal around town. Everybody is trying to get over to see the progress and maybe get on tv. I haven't gone yet but tomorrow they are filming the reveal!

They totally tore down the existing home on Saturday morning. The house is now finished!!! It is made out of stone and looks like it is 3 stories tall! I saw it on the local news. I am stunned. The house is a mansion.

The parents who live there are both handicapped and have some other issues.

Remember to check it out when it aires. I don't know when that will be yet.

=====

Re:Extreme Makeover Home Edition

Posted by teklawgirl - 2006/12/06 23:29

Hi Debby, I live in Durham, and heard about the Extreme Makeover going on. Do you know more about the family's story, besides being handicapped? I'm sure that they must be very deserving or they wouldn't be doing it. Would love to feel inspired by their story!

With kindest regards, Donna E.

=====

Re:Extreme Makeover Home Edition

Posted by teklawgirl - 2006/12/06 23:29

Hi Debby, I live in Durham, and heard about the Extreme Makeover going on. Do you know more about the family's story, besides being handicapped? I'm sure that they must be very deserving or they wouldn't be doing it. Would love to feel inspired by their story!

With kindest regards, Donna E.

=====

Re:Extreme Makeover Home Edition

Posted by grizzlys4 - 2006/12/07 02:02

Love, Love, Love this show!!!!!!! After all the crap on the news and other places.....I love seeing the giving and strength shown!!

Debby.....when they did one here near Colorado Springs, a friend and I took all the kiddos out to see.....it was enough of a drive that we didn't go back for the reveal.....but it was cool to see!!

I had the opportunity to volunteer as a standby EMT, but I was sick.....I was soooooo bummed!!!!!!

=====

Re:Extreme Makeover Home Edition

Posted by Debby - 2006/12/07 12:25

Grizz, maybe they will come back and you will get another chance.

Donna, I didn't catch all they said about the homeowners, except that it was a deserving family. The mother is a social worker and tries to help others despite having serious problems of her own. Her husband is blind.

That house is great! It is in an usual neighborhood. It's near the governor's mansion but it is also in an urban area. I trust it will fit into the neighborhood.

=====

Re:Extreme Makeover Home Edition

Posted by Debby - 2006/12/28 12:12

I just discovered that the Extreme Makeover Home Edition that was done in my town of Raleigh, NC, will be aired on January 21, 2007. I hope you get a chance to check it out. I plan to.

=====

Re:Extreme Makeover Home Edition

Posted by KPW1956 - 2006/12/28 15:54

I always try to watch the program. I really enjoy it... I will definitely try to catch it!

Has anyone had a favorite episode?

My favorite was the family who had an autistic son.. and the parents were both deaf. They had an older son who seemed to be the glue to the family... or at least acted in the capacity of go between in a majority of situations..

The show was able to really help them update their home with technology that could help them all alot more. If I remember right... others were very impressed with the son..and offered him scholarship money. The updates in the house would allow him to be able to go away to school without worrying about his parents and younger brother..

That show greatly impressed me... and especially the young man's devotion to his brother and his parents..

=====

Re:Extreme Makeover Home Edition

Posted by Debby - 2006/12/28 16:08

KPW, I have only seen a couple of the shows. I didn't catch the one that you describe here.

The family in Raleigh got so much support that it has been amazing. The Carolina Hurricanes, (our hockey team) went over yesterday and donated $10,000.00 to the family. I think it was so the family could help with a charity project that means alot to them.

I'll have to watch the show for the next few weeks.

=====

Re:Extreme Makeover Home Edition

Posted by grizzlys4 - 2006/12/29 02:47

Nooooooooooooooooooooo.....don't make me!!!!!!!!!!!!

I truly can't pick a favorite.....they're all so moving and inspiring and I love to see the wonderful part of humanity that comes together. I'm so sick of the jerks and criminals that take advantage of others!! I also have such an appreciation for my own little family and the issues that we are spared!! It really helps with my perspective! Even my kids have said that although we love to admire and dream about the homes that are built.....we would never trade our family's situation for anything so horrendous that would be on that show!!!

A couple of shows that particularly touched me:

The mom who had 6 kids whose firefighter husband died in their bed.....OMG!!

The dad in NY whose wife died of cancer and left him with 3 young boys.....OMG!!

Okay, okay.....I could go on and on!!!

=====

Re:Extreme Makeover Home Edition

Posted by KPW1956 - 2006/12/29 09:37

Grizz, you reminded me of another favorite... The Iraq veteran that lost a leg. The show helped him be fitted with a special prothesis.. But this guy in having his home redone... asked that his windows be pulled out to be installed in another vets home (who was also severely wounded and disabled)... In essence trying to help someone else.. I guess his windows might not have been that old...

Yes, this show really does make me realize how very fortunate I am to have a roof over my head and the health of my loved ones.
Sometimes we take it for granted!

Another favorite that is coming to mind... Is the one about the christian camp for handicapped children... It really bought some wonderful exposure to a terrific camp.. and helped to equip them to do even more in the future. I think there was a blind boy who sang Amazing Grace.. and so many of the EHM were in tears.. But then again..it's nice to see Ty and the other staff moved in so many of these situations too.

Yes, maybe I shouldn't have started a favorites topic... but the Deaf couple, with the younger autistic son.. were prominent in my mind... It highlighted one selfless young man who went above and beyond for his family on a regular basis..

=====

Re:Extreme Makeover Home Edition

Posted by Debby - 2007/01/19 17:53

Just a reminder for those who are interested. Extreme Makeover featuring a family in my city, Raleigh, NC, comes on this Sunday night, January 21 at 8:00. The previews look good.

=====

Re:Extreme Makeover Home Edition

Posted by KPW1956 - 2007/01/19 17:57

Thanks for the reminder Debby.. I plan to watch it.

Have you gone by to see the house since it was completed?

=====

Re:Extreme Makeover Home Edition

Posted by grizzlys4 - 2007/01/22 21:04

That WAS a great one!!

Of course, they are all touching!! The love this couple has for others just radiates off them!! I'm sooooooooooooo glad their family was chosen!!!!

=====

Re:Extreme Makeover Home Edition

Posted by Debby - 2007/01/23 17:03

I agree Grizz. Tears were streaming down my face the entire show. I was glad they got so much help. What I was sad about is that our community had allowed those people to sink to that level without helping them. I felt bad about that.

Maybe nobody knew how bad their situation was. Anyway, since the show was filmed, the community has come out and really offered so much support to them and the community center. It really inspired me.

=====