
Rhonda - New blog 12/10

Posted by KPW1956 - 2006/12/11 09:54

Happy Birthday Rhonda!

<http://www.fearlessliving.org/blog/rhonda>

Post edited by: KPW1956, at: 2006/12/11 12:46

=====

Re:Rhonda - New blog 12/10

Posted by 1putter - 2006/12/11 21:05

:unsure: I don't mean to be critical, but Rhonda is sounding alot more immature and insecure in her blogs than I ever thought of her before.

I have stopped reading her "advice" and find myself getting so much more from the books I have read from Iyanla. She, (Iyanla) has so much more confidence in her message and speaks from a place of peace and wholesomeness.

I appreciate you sharing Rhonda's blog, if only to clarify my own feelings about her message.

=====

Re:Rhonda - New blog 12/10

Posted by wish - 2006/12/11 23:24

1putter i have to agree with you Rhonda has become so insecure and immature now i wonder how she able to hide it so good on the show.

=====

Re:Rhonda - New blog 12/10

Posted by KPW1956 - 2006/12/11 23:27

That's ok... Just trying to keep up with any new developments.

I can understand the constant struggle she obviously has between the old self and new self.. It's one I've had to wage all my adult life to one degree or another.

Hopefully one of her blogs will reveal info about a new project sooner pr later.

=====

Re:Rhonda - New blog 12/10

Posted by turtle - 2006/12/18 16:33

wish wrote:

1putter i have to agree with you Rhonda has become so insecure and immature now i wonder how she able to hide it so good on the show.

She didn't hide it very well from me. All those "dating" exercises she put so many HG's through spoke volumes, IMO, about her own issues with men.

=====

Re:Rhonda - New blog 12/10

Posted by doxygirl - 2006/12/18 17:31

turtle wrote:

wish wrote:

1putter i have to agree with you Rhonda has become so insecure and immature now i wonder how she able to hide it so good on the show.

She didn't hide it very well from me. All those "dating" exercises she put so many HG's through spoke volumes, IMO, about her own issues with men.

This is very interesting. I don't think I picked up on this when I watched the show, but I agree that it would be very hard for someone with Rhonda's issues to conceal them on a show like SO where so many "mirrors" and "triggers" were present.

Can you remember which dating exercises struck you as revealing something about Rhonda's issues with men, and what issues they seemed to show? Did anyone else pick up on that?

=====

Re:Rhonda - New blog 12/10

Posted by 1putter - 2006/12/18 20:07

You know, Doxy, I cannot think of anything specific from SO but Rhonda was fixated on having the women "hook up" the whole time they were in the house. From my perspective it seemed most of these women had important issues to work on - why should they be distracted by trying to "find a mate" ?? I remember thinking how in appropriate it seemed.

I'm sure someone will come up with specific examples because there are many.

=====

Re:Rhonda - New blog 12/10

Posted by Debby - 2006/12/20 14:22

I thought the hg who were given "dating" excercises on the show were women who indicated that they had issues with relationships or that they dreamed of having that special someone in their life. I didn't see anything wrong with the relationship exercises except for one.

Remember Lane? She was there specifically to help find a mate. I thought some of the exercises Rhonda had her do were not realistic and some of them actually made me angry.

Remember the loser setup date who came to the house and was sooo rude? He talked on the phone to his ex-girlfriend and was generally a jerk. Lane kept her cool, but, didn't appreciate it. Rhonda pointed out to Lane that she should look at the positives about this man and that she was being too picky. I thought tolerating conduct like that from a man says you are so desperate for a man that you will become a doormat. That's just me.

=====