
Dog The Bounty Hunter

Posted by Debby - 2006/12/28 16:35

This is probably the strangest post that I have ever made. Anyway, here goes....

Most people would be in shock if they knew that I really adore Dwayne Chappman, "Dog, The Bounty Hunter." I mean, not that there's anything wrong with him, it's just that he doesn't seem the kind of man that most people would think I would find attractive. It is very easy for them to see me attracted to a Donny Osmond type, but, not a wild type like Dog.

Do any of you find someone attractive that you cannot put your finger on why? I also love Robert Plant, but, I know I admire him because of his musical talent. I just can't figure out my attraction for Dog. Everytime I watch that show, I just sit there and think of how sexy I think he is.

I saw an ad regarding his show on this site today and it made me think of him. I also watched the show last night. I know he recently got married to his sidekick, Beth. I like her too. She is sooo funny on that show. I think the two of them make a great couple.

=====

Re:Dog The Bounty Hunter

Posted by mazzy - 2006/12/28 19:56

Okay... I'll share, but you better not laugh.

Benjamin Netanyahu... he is a former Prime Minister of Israel... he's intelligent, powerful and good looking.

LOL... can't believe I'm sharing this... LOL.

=====

Re:Dog The Bounty Hunter

Posted by grizzlys4 - 2006/12/29 02:35

I totally understand Debby.....for me a big part of it is his sense of justice that needs to be taken care of.....just hand me an "unfair" issue and the means to do something about it and I am there!!! LOL

I love the show, although my hubby laughs at me!! I also love the Colorado connection and I think his son that lives here is a neat guy with a sweet family too!!

And really, whether people like him personally or not.....just the fact that HE is under house arrest and may face Mexican imprisonment along with his brother and one of his sons because they did the world a HUGE favor by bringing back a lowlife, scumbag, convicted serial rapist to the U.S. to serve his time???? That's such a disgusting display of injustice here!!!

=====

Re:Dog The Bounty Hunter

Posted by Debby - 2006/12/29 12:56

I do hope that he does not have to go serve time in a Mexican prison. I saw he and his wife on Larry King and it seems like he may have a good defense.

Mazzy, I'm not laughing. I find myself attracted to people that just don't seem to be my type. Oh well, I guess it's a good thing. Hopefully, it says I am open minded.

=====

Re:Dog The Bounty Hunter

Posted by mazzy - 2006/12/29 22:41

LOL... opposites attract, however, the longer you live with someone... the more they become like you... LOL.

I like strong, powerful, rich men... like my DH, but he doesn't run a country, and he is rich in other than monetary means... LOL. He is strong, and still very good looking... LOL. And I do love him.

=====

Re:Dog The Bounty Hunter

Posted by moondreamer - 2006/12/29 23:00

Looks wise I like Dog, but personality wise, he brags too much and he's too much of a drama queen. He acts like his s@@@ doesn't stink because he does what is right. Well except that little incident in Mexico there. Wonder if he's going to turn himself in on that. Hmm.

I like an actor named Abraham (can't spell last name) who played Jerry on ER and is now a bartender in Men in Trees. He's such a teddy bear. I wouldn't mind being in Alaska if he were my S. O.;

=====

Re:Dog The Bounty Hunter

Posted by Debby - 2007/01/02 12:01

Moondreamer, I think you are right about Dog being a little too full of himself, but, I suspect that is one of the reasons I like him. I know, it sounds crazy, but, I really think it has to be that "overly confident" inflated ego that turns me on.

Have you all noticed that he is really balding? I would think that could deflate the ego, but, maybe not.

I do believe that he works out quite a bit. I think his body is quite fine.

=====

Re:Dog The Bounty Hunter

Posted by moondreamer - 2007/01/02 19:51

You couldn't deflate Dog's ego with a jack hammer.

Has anyone seen the episode where he spends about half the time talking about how he is the ultimate rug vacuumer because he was once a vacuum cleaner salesman, and no one but him can vacuum the floors in his home?

I agree about him getting that horrible guy, BUT, he should recognize that he did break the Mexican law. All they want is to fine him a bunch of dinero and make a buck off him I'm sure. And they are having ego probs too cause the Gringo defied them and they're not going to let him get away with it - for free.

=====