
Season Six Auditions - American Idol

Posted by Nadia - 2007/01/17 15:32

Anyone watch American Idol last night?? I was in stitches laughing.
It was a change to see that Randy was a little hard this time around which is good.

My favorite audition yesterday was Trista's Lion Roar!! that had to be the most funniest.

Can't wait for tonight!
watched the previews and it looks to be another good laugh!

Re:Season Six Auditions - American Idol

Posted by grizzlys4 - 2007/01/18 04:05

OMG Nadia.....it's hilarious!!

While I do feel for the young kids on the show (and WHY do their parents encourage them to go on??) the adults know full well what to expect!! This is season 6!!!

And I love how nicey-nice they are when they first walk in and when they're rejected all of a sudden how "none of them know nothin' about music!".....I couldn't believe only 14 out of both days in Seattle!!! That IS the worst!!!!

Re:Season Six Auditions - American Idol

Posted by Nadia - 2007/01/18 06:33

I think it's pretty good that parents are encouraging their children to try out for American Idol at the same time the judges can and are pretty tough and I think that they should be prepared to hear the worst. If they can't take criticism then they shouldn't be auditioning.

A few of the people on the show I cracked up i.e.: Melissa (AKA - Meshia) with them pink tights, then there was Darwin the blonde girl with the black glasses. She and her Mother looked a like just different hair color. She said that her look was sexy! LOL (NOT) and another thing... it appeared she had forgotten to wear a bra she was soooooooooo nasty!

My number 1 best worst for the night was Kenneth Briggs ,- said he was told he looked like Justin Timberlake and Lance OMG not even close!....poor Ken was told that he looked like a Monkey by Simon... LOL I know it doesn't sound to be funny now but as I watched it at the time it was.

Anyone else watch last nights show?

Re:Season Six Auditions - American Idol

Posted by Nadia - 2007/01/18 06:33

Post edited by: Nadia, at: 2007/01/18 06:34

Re:Season Six Auditions - American Idol

Posted by TigerRose - 2007/01/18 13:00

We watch it every season. My hubby's become a huge fan of the show. I love seeing the raw talent compared to what they end up.

They said that Seattle had the most delusional people there. So maybe there will be more talent in other cities.

There is suppose to be a song writing competition according to Randy Jackson. He was on the Today show. He also again spoke about why he was so harsh with the "vocal teacher".

=====

Re:Season Six Auditions - American Idol

Posted by grizzlys4 - 2007/01/19 00:01

I DO laugh at the singers who have such an attitude about their singing and they totally cannot!!!

But I think last night they went too far with the physical name-calling....."giraffe" and "monkey".....and the fat ones they tease. I don't like that.

It's a singing competition and I'm all for that "talent" being up for grabs as this IS season 6 and they know what's what!

=====

Re:Season Six Auditions - American Idol

Posted by Nadia - 2007/01/19 10:46

Has anyone seen this clip with Paula Abdul she was on live American Television she looks absolutely ridiculously drunk! Or she's gotta be on something cause she looks like a freak in this clip.

watch this clip and you be the judge

<http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=Zt5-wn3fvlw&eurl=>

=====

Re:Season Six Auditions - American Idol

Posted by Nadia - 2007/01/19 11:12

grizzlys4 wrote:

I DO laugh at the singers who have such an attitude about their singing and they totally cannot!!!

But I think last night they went too far with the physical name-calling....."giraffe" and "monkey".....and the fat ones they tease. I don't like that.

It's a singing competition and I'm all for that "talent" being up for grabs as this IS season 6 and they know what's what!

Hey Griz, now that I've seen the show and I guess really sat down and thought about it I do find these name calling ie "bush monkey" was a little extreme. I know I said that I found it funny but I guess at the time it was, and I'm sure there where a lot of ppl like me that day watching the show found it funny. Your right, it is a singing competition and nothing else and Simon went over board with his comments.

Post edited by: Nadia, at: 2007/01/19 11:13

=====

Re:Season Six Auditions - American Idol

Posted by mistyblu - 2007/01/19 11:42

I can't wrap my brain around with what is wrong with Paula again. Before she said it was prescription drugs due to the pain of many accidents she was in.

Randy, Paula and Simon probably have the best kept secrets among theirself.

Kelly Pickler said on The View that they are all well aware what is going to take place and there are no supprises. Whatever that means.

We think this is reality tv and maybe its all staged to happen, after all they put people on who cannot sing a note while we sit and "gasp" or "giggle" about it.

I did get disturbed with the name calling of Simon of the one kid criticizing his eyes and calling him a monkey. I really think this is horrible to do and teenagers watch this and will think its ok and taunt and tease other kids worse. Geeze we have these killings by teenagers or suicides due to bullying and meansness of other kids and here we are watching it come down on tv like its funny.

=====

Re:Season Six Auditions - American Idol

Posted by ceiliidh - 2007/01/21 15:48

I don't watch American Idol, and have only seen bits and pieces on various "magazine" shows. I did see the clip of Simon Cowell insulting the young man however, and think that his comments were far "beyond the pale." Have seen Simon as a guest on talk shows and find his arrogance to be amazing! Find myself wondering exactly what HIS "talent is ???

Saw a piece today in which it was insinuated that the "odd looking" people standing in line are pulled out and given songs to sing that they had not prepared for. Could explain a lot.:unsure:

=====

Re:Season Six Auditions - American Idol

Posted by Debby - 2007/01/22 15:12

I have seen Paula recently acting much like she does in the video link above on other programs. It is soooo obvious that she is taking something. She may be on pain killers. I had a family member a couple of years ago, who had back surgery and afterwards she took many pain pills and she acted similar to Paula. It was so embarrassing for the entire family. All the kids would laugh at her. Eventually she got off the medication and is back to normal, but, apparently Paula is having some difficulty. I know Idol has alot at stake with their huge show, but, they really need to insist she get some professional help.

I have always liked Simon, but, lately I am really ticked with him. Someone needs to put him in his place.

Making fun of someone's singing ability is one thing, but, making fun of someone's physical appearance is just mean and shows your own insecurity. Simon is acting like an eight year old...no, not even that, most eight year olds know not to insult people like he does. Plus Randy and Paula should be held responsible for laughing along with the physical insults.

I was disgusted with his remark about that lovely young tall girl, who sang beautifully, only for Simon to remark that she was a giraffe, when she walked out the door. That along with the other verbal insults about physical appearance should not be tolerated. Only the public can get that across to ABC.