
The Apprentice - Season Six

Posted by Nadia - 2007/01/07 02:33

I'm not sure if I have this right but I think The Apprentice starts on Tuesday! Can anyone confirm this?

=====

Re:The Apprentice - Season Six

Posted by KPW1956 - 2007/01/07 02:53

Nadia,

I was watching the Seahawks/Dallas game tonight and thought I saw a commercial for it being on tomorrow night. I did a quick check and I think that is right.

I'm surprised... I think that Grease reality show is tomorrow night too..

Check your tv guide to be sure tomorrow.. But here is a link that mentions tomorrow night as well.. (I'm not familiar with the link..but it seems on the up and up..)

<http://www.courant.com/features/lifestyle/hc-tveye106.artjan06,0,4682117.story?track=rss>

=====

Re:The Apprentice - Season Six

Posted by mazzy - 2007/01/08 15:13

I saw The Apprentice last night... my DH, daughter and I are fans.

The Donald did not disappoint... the show was great. A new twist was added... the losing team does not live in the new LA mansion... they reside on the grounds outside the mansion in a tent like city... a real "Survivor" touch has been added to the stress of the job interview process... LOL. I can see the guys managing, but the poor women... hair, makeup and fighting bugs can't be too much fun.

I already have a favorite apprentice... the young woman who was the leader of the winning team has my vote so far... she's hard working... intelligent, and really sharp.

The Donald, his wife and baby are living in the mansion next door... the new boardroom is in his mansion and is beautifully decorated. It's nice to see his wife on the show... his daughter is in the boardroom replacing Caroline. I personally like her better than Caroline.

The results of the challenge was very close... it looked like one team was way ahead, but the losing team really came close. The person that was eliminated didn't appear to fit into the Trump organization, but he would have been entertaining to watch... the leader of the losing team may be on his way shortly... he's not apprentice material...

=====

Re:The Apprentice - Season Six

Posted by grizzlys4 - 2007/01/08 15:42

I agree mazzy!!!!

It was hilarious to watch them in the tents.....one of them actually compared living in a big tent on a mansion's lawn with good food to "third world conditions"????????????????

:blink: :blink: :blink: :blink: :blink: :blink: :blink: :blink:

Yeah.....they don't know "roughing it"!!! FUNNNNNY!!!

The guy, Martin, who was fired really did have an ego about as big as Donald's!!! LOL But he didn't have ANY form of teamwork ability at all!!! I also think the other guy who was PM is headed out shortly too.

I miss Caroline.....she seemed to have her own opinions!! But I don't mind Ivanka either. Melania and the baby sure are cuties!!!

Re:The Apprentice - Season Six

Posted by mistyblu - 2007/01/15 12:01

Can't get into show and fell asleep both times I tried to watch it but then when I saw Donald walking across the sand in his suit and barefoot--I went back to sleep.

The ratings are down so I guess this will be the last season.

General concenses of opinions of those that are professionals out there in the workplace cannot stand the --"yes Mr. Trump" -- holding him up there as icon of God.

I find it unrealistic and boring. I am a reality show nut and I guess I want more reality and it seems Donald and his daughter are acting and reading scripts. Plus I miss George and Caroline not there.

The tents somehow do not fit with the show. Plus I am tired of the same ole--I made 20,000 oh I win I made --20,100. The winning is too slim margin for me too often.

There is supposed to be a unauthorized biography in the making about Donald. He said if it isn't right that he is going to sue--of course.

I been doing some reading on the Donald and sounds like he is a pretty mean spirited brat whos daddy has bailed him out and was a lot wealthier than I ever knew. But the father died a few years ago and Donald has 3 other siblings and his 1/3 share of inheritance was 200 million. Did not know daddy was so wealthy. Which Donald rolled over in his holdings. Not a lot of good written about him--they say if this country had a debtors prison that Donald would be living in the basement. They say he never had friends and he was well known when young to go around saying....looking for a fight..."you know who I am"

I thought that Donald was acting strangely these pass 2 years but seems its just the way he is and no one can shut him up anymore.

A news clipping said that when he married Marla Maples and saw her coming down the isle that he "was allready bored with her."

I think he is full of it and my opinion of all that was that Marla wanted marriage and he had no intentions so she got pregnant so he would have to marry her and give the baby his name. While he thinks he may be in control never underestimate women.

I don't know about the business end with him as it seems that is not very good. Seems he filed Chapter 11 last year which means he had to step down as CEO. He says its nothing--they say it is. I say, does this mean they can say..."Donald your fired."???????

Re:The Apprentice - Season Six

Posted by mazzy - 2007/01/27 17:02

I did not get a chance to see last Sunday's show, but I was able to catch the rerun on CNBC last evening.

The challenge was not too interesting, but the boardroom antics were fun. I don't remember the name of the contestant who was project manager, but she was sure on the "hot seat" of the losing team. I thought it was very wise of her to "resign" as I would prefer to resign over getting fired. "The Donald" verbally attacked her choice, and I believe went over board with his comments. I thought she handled herself well under the circumstances... thanked him for the opportunity, however, made it clear that the "tent situation" is not when she signed up for.

I'm hoping they drop the "tent situation" very soon... I don't think it is a realistic way of going about a job interview. The actual challenges have not been too interesting this season, kind of same old... same old.

The show could be a wonderful look at the interview process, and could have educational benefits to a lot of young people starting out if they would only stop going for the "entertainment" hook. I found it more entertaining to see how young, bright... obviously talented people worked under pressure. I would love an extensive look at the final interview process when the contestants interview with the Donald's staff.

Anyone still watching the Apprentice?

=====

Re:The Apprentice - Season Six

Posted by grizzlys4 - 2007/01/28 20:33

Yup I am!! I don't "like" Donald, it's true. And his ego is huge.

BUT.....he IS entertaining!!!! :D

I totally cracked up at the girl (don't know if it was the one that quit?) who called living in that tent on the lawn of a mansion with all the amenities the same as "living in 3rd world conditions." :blink:

Now, I agree.....the tent thing is stupid and totally for a ratings twist.....but it sure ain't no 3rd world living!!!! I'd like to send that chick to Cambodia for a bit!!!

So.....what'll happen tonite???

=====

Re:The Apprentice - Season Six

Posted by mazy - 2007/01/28 23:55

LOL... The Donald and his ego are too funny... I think he may be losing interest in his own show... LOL.

This week was so... so. The other team finally got into the mansion. I love the way the "old mansion team" complained about how dirty the other team left things. I can see being neat and clean for a few days, but living in the "third world conditions" for a month could get to a lot of people... I'm personally not a "camper kind of gal" so I must admit that I may have resigned if they assigned me the tent... LOL.

Last year's winner seemed like he fits in with the Donald's organization... if a bit full of himself... LOL.

=====