
Bad Girls Club - anyone watching?

Posted by KPW1956 - 2007/02/23 10:51

I periodically check out the Oxygen website and try to glean what's going on there. There is a forum for the show but it's pretty bad as you can imagine.

When the show first started Reality Shack website had a couple of recaps..but I think even they abandoned this show..

I can tell that after Ripsi was thrown out... that a few weeks later our one and only Ty beat up one of the other women and either got thrown out too or left on her own. It sounded like she was asked to leave though.

I think a couple of you mentioned watching the show. Are any of you still following it? I am still surprised that they are airing episodes. Maybe they don't have a good replacement show.. I think they might be half way through the # of episodes that Oxygen purchased.

Anyway.. I had to laugh when I saw that Ty was out of the house. She made herself out to be the person everyone would ultimately love..

=====

Re:Bad Girls Club - anyone watching?

Posted by Nadia - 2007/02/25 03:05

:) anyone watching Ummmmmm nope. LOL (thanks for the laugh)

=====

Re:Bad Girls Club - anyone watching?

Posted by Debby - 2007/02/25 14:18

I was watching the show, but, then it seemed everytime it came on it was a rerun on the same episode I had just seen and they would show it over and over. I kinda just gave up.

I did catch part of the show last week, but, it just didn't hold my interest. I just think it lacks interest and substance.

Although I am way too old for the show The Hills, I like it. I think it comes on MTV. Anyway, I would start a thread on it, but, I'm pretty sure nobody would respond. I really like The Hills. It has the same format as Laguna Beach, but, it's a much better show. I think it's designed for teen and early 20's girls.

=====

Re:Bad Girls Club - anyone watching?

Posted by wish - 2007/02/26 00:30

Debby i love the hills its a great show.

=====

Re:Bad Girls Club - anyone watching?

Posted by Debby - 2007/02/26 11:28

That's great! Heidi reminds me so much of one of my best friends. I think that's why I am so fond of her. That Spencer is such a dog! When will she wake up and get rid of him? Oh, I guess I need to start a new thread on The Hills.

=====

Re:Bad Girls Club - anyone watching?

Posted by Nadia - 2007/05/02 00:18

we haven't talked about this show in a very long time. has anyone seen the hole show? or even know how it end or is it still on?? you think there is going to be another season of BadGirls?

=====

Re:Bad Girls Club - anyone watching?

Posted by Nadia - 2007/05/02 00:39

Well, I went searching and found some stuff....

Ripsi -She was kicked off the show in Episode 2 for attacking Kerry and Jodie under the influence.

Zara - in the episode "Chicken Scratch", Zara cut her wrist in an attempted suicide.

Ty - She was kicked off the show for punching Aimee during a house trip to the beach.

and....

Spin-Off & Season Two

The Oxygen Network announced a six-episode spin-off, Bad Girls Road Trip, which will put season-one vets—stripper Leslie, loudmouth Aimee and pariah Zara—behind the wheel for a whirlwind tour of their respective hometowns. The trio will also check in on Bunim/Murray Productions auditions for the season-two cast. The Oxygen Network also picked the series up for a second season on March 28, 2007, with the season one finale being broadcast May 2007 so there you have it.. there is a season two!

=====

Re:Bad Girls Club - anyone watching?

Posted by kisergurl - 2007/05/02 00:55

Hello Nadia,

Yes I did watch the show! (what can I say, I'M a reality tv show nut") The girls were so absorbed on their own selves that they hardly saw the reckless behavior that their own actions caused. I just watched the final show and two of the woman were very anal to Dr. Stan. (they didn't need fixing lol) I actually was embarrassed for them as for being so ignorant of how they looked on tv tonight. They definatly had a major chip on their shoulder, and Dr. Stan looked shocked at the their behavior! I have to say this was a very in your face show.

=====

Re:Bad Girls Club - anyone watching?

Posted by Nadia - 2007/05/02 07:00

Thanks for the update. I don't have the oxygen channel or I may have watched a few episodes.

Was Dr Stan any part of this show? if not then why would he be on there?

=====

Re:Bad Girls Club - anyone watching?

Posted by KPW1956 - 2007/05/02 08:51

Does anyone remember when Ty came on this site trying to drum up interest in her? Then when we gave her our opinions of the concept of the show (Bad Girls hadn't actually started airing yet...but had wrapped for the season).. She got all nasty..

I wonder if they were trying to just keep their bad girl images and why they just stuck together against Dr. STan. Maybe had he met with them individually... Since Bunim/Murray produced the show..they might have wanted to give it some semblance of Starting Over.

I can't believe the show is going to a second season. My cable company dropped the station from their lineup... Maybe this Bad Girls tour is trying to drum up new interest in the show.. I can't imagine that it is as successful as they are making it out to be. I'm having a very difficult time finding any recaps of the show. And that is even among reality tv sites..

Maybe Oxygen doesn't think it has anything to lose.. and hope it will pick up steam..

Re:Bad Girls Club - anyone watching?

Posted by kisergurl - 2007/05/02 12:01

Nadia, In response to your post, Dr. Stan wasn't apart of any of the shows. I was shocked that they brought him on for a session with the girls. The show prior to the one he was on, all the girls said their goodbyes and left the house. The show brought them back for a quick fix of sorts.

KP, in response to your post, the girls that showed up did have a one on one with Dr. Stan for a total of a few minutes (it was only on for 1/2 hour). The girls that fought each other either had a meeting seperate,together or declined to meet with the other girl they fought with! I have read the message boards for the show (they were very nasty talking girls) and it was "VERY" popular to the younger crowd. I think that is what (a shame) Bunim/Murray was looking for a younger more "hip" audience!::S

Re:Bad Girls Club - anyone watching?

Posted by Nadia - 2007/05/02 12:24

Oh I remember Ty coming stirring up problems here and with members.

I think if the girls had one on one time with a therapist to discuss their problems ie: life, family or what's inside their head.. Maybe some of the girls would have not behaved so badly.

www.mediaweek.com wrote this about badgirls.

MARCH 28, 2007

"Bad Girls is the highest-rated original series in Oxygen's seven-year history. It also delivers the network's youngest audience, with a median age of just under 30."

So go figure.

::S:

Re:Bad Girls Club - anyone watching?

Posted by Debby - 2007/05/02 13:37

I can't believe I missed Dr. Stan! I had company last night and lost track of time. I must see it on a rerun. They run them often for that show. At first I watched a couple of shows and they were pretty good. Then something changed and it got boring to me. I mean really boring.

I don't see what young people think is interesting about it. Those ladies look plenty old to me and I'm not a spring chicken. My little group of girlfriends were more fun than these girls and we were all in our late 30's and 40's. Of course, if they are going to bring Dr. Stan back, I'll watch whenever he's on.

How did he look? Has he changed much since SO?

Re:Bad Girls Club - anyone watching?

Posted by Tara - 2007/05/02 17:52

I think the show really has a lot of potential I would really like to see a Coach and/or some type of mental health professional on next season. It's obvious those women have some real issues and could use some professional help.

Post edited by: Tara, at: 2007/05/02 17:53

Re:Bad Girls Club - anyone watching?

Posted by kisergurl - 2007/05/02 22:53

I think the show really has a lot of potential I would really like to see a Coach and/or some type of mental health professional on next season. It's obvious those women have some real issues and could use some professional help.

Post edited by: Tara, at: 2007/05/02 17:53

Tara, I so agree! I shouldn't pass doubt, but I think a couple of those girl were so angry inside that ,I don't believe they would accept that they have issues. I did go to the site that KP. had mentioned and one of the girls "followers" were congratulating her for holding her own! The part that I don't understand is that they let the girls come to the house without any assignments,rules,or therapy. I felt as though a few were like on spring break. "LET'S PARTY".:huh:

Re:Bad Girls Club - anyone watching?

Posted by Debby - 2007/05/03 13:02

I guess I missed something. I thought the whole point of the show was for the "bad girls" to get together and raise hell. I never got the idea from anyone they were there to improve themselves. Ooopps. I must have missed that part.

Re:Bad Girls Club - anyone watching?

Posted by Tara - 2007/05/03 15:59

I don't think they ever intended for them to "raise hell". I think the 1st season was an experiment to what would happen by putting 7 "bad girls" into a house.

Re:Bad Girls Club - anyone watching?

Posted by kisergurl - 2007/05/04 17:57

Debby wrote:

I guess I missed something. I thought the whole point of the show was for the "bad girls" to get together and raise hell. I never got the idea from anyone they were there to improve themselves. Ooopps. I must have missed that part.

Debby, No you didn't miss anything. That was the way the show was intended to be, as far as "raising hell". I was more or less agreeing with what Tara was saying about maybe next season having mental health help. I just didn't see the point of having a show without of any kind of structure,heck they could have stayed home and partied. I felt it was all about ratings. I watch the real world and they are also to have a job or school along with their partying. The sister show to Real world, which is a show wich they compete for cash prizes.There was a mess when Jerry Springer's show resulted with phisical violence, and to me this show was no better, as far as being attacked. I do like reality shows, but I was embarrassed for the ones at the result of the attack.;)

Re:Bad Girls Club - anyone watching?

Posted by Debby - 2007/05/08 11:33

I remember on the Real World Key West, one of the girls was really messed up mentally and suffered from a serious eating disorder, plus she had a terrible drinking problem. Finally, the show got her into a therapist right there in Key West. She went while she was on the show. She later said they saved her life. I think they were afraid of liability if they didn't do something. However they try to absolve themselves from liability by getting signed waivers, the waiver probably won't save them if the negligence is very bad.

I guess in any setting like that you encounter people who are very bad off and need inhouse care. I think that might be hard to do if you have a group ready to get wild and party. I think the SO house even ran into problems when they allowed the "little" partying that they did with the wine drinking. I think many people would not bother applying to go on a show that would restrict so very much about them, so as having a glass of wine with dinner.

As if appears Bad Girls Club is coming back, they should get some structure in the house and offer if not insist on a life coach.

Re:Bad Girls Club - anyone watching?

Posted by Debby - 2007/06/13 13:35

Well I finally saw my man, Dr. Stan on The Bad Girls Club. He's still looking so fine.

I'm still a little speechless. Was it scripted? I mean why would BM want those "BAD" girls to sit down and show emotion and be vulnerable with a therapist. That would be bad for ratings, right? I mean Bad Girls on a Road Trip was already in the works. Wouldn't want to calm anybody down or create any self discipline before that is filmed. LOL.

I think Dr. Stan took it well. I think he knew what to expect and he played along. He admitted that he hadn't seen patients as "bad" as these girls in inmates and juvenile delinquents. LOL. I cracked up.

The sad thing is that some of those girls may not have the resources to seek guidance from a nationally recognized mental health professional and their one opportunity to do if for free, they either blew it off because of pride or because the show made them. Tisk, Tisk. What a shame.

Re:Bad Girls Club - anyone watching?

Posted by insipid - 2007/06/13 21:25

Last night while flipping channels, I caught a glimpse of Dr Stan.

I had to stop a minute to watch him tho I had no idea what he was talking about or to whom - I hadn't seen Bad Girls since I attempted to watch the very first episode and just couldn't hang.

It made me realize just how much I have missed Dr Stan!!! He should have his own show!!! What a great guy - and, yes, he did look "fine!"

Re:Bad Girls Club - anyone watching?

Posted by Debby - 2007/06/14 17:43

insipid wrote:

Last night while flipping channels, I caught a glimpse of Dr Stan.

I had to stop a minute to watch him tho I had no idea what he was talking about or to whom - I hadn't seen Bad Girls since I attempted to watch the very first episode and just couldn't hang.

It made me realize just how much I have missed Dr Stan!!! He should have his own show!!! What a great guy - and, yes, he did look "fine!"

Next time you can, watch that episode. It is really pretty good, because Dr. Stan is on there. He tries to help, but the girls just don't want any part of him. For the most part, they say they don't have a problem and he should just mind his own business. I thought they were quite rude, but that's why they call them "Bad Girls", right?

He took it all in stride. I know he is well received in the tv world. Why he couldn't get a show, if he wanted one, I don't know.

=====